

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. The following-named Delegates from the Territories also appeared and took their seats, viz :

The Speaker announced that two hundred and thirty-eight members having answered to their names, a quorum had appeared.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Gorham, its Secretary:

Mr. Speaker: I am directed to inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate has assembled, and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

The Senate have adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of two members, to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House has assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make, and have appointed Mr. Anthony and Mr. Bayard the committee on their part.

The following-named members elect, having appeared and taken the oath of office prescribed by section 1756 of the Revised Statutes, took their seats in the House, viz :

From the State of New York.—John M. Bailey, from the sixteenth Congressional district, in the place of Terrence J. Quinn, deceased.

From the State of Nebraska.—Thomas J. Majors, in the place of Frank Welch, deceased.

By unanimous consent, resolutions were submitted, read, considered, and agreed to as follows, viz:

By Mr. Wood:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be directed to inform the Senate that a quorum of the House of Representatives has assembled and that the House is ready to proceed to business.

By Mr. Atkins:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed on the part of the House, to join the committee which has been appointed on the part of the Senate, to wait upon the President and inform him that a quorum of both Houses has assembled and that Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

Ordered, That Mr. Atkins, Mr. Samuel S. Cox, and Mr. Garfield be the said committee on the part of the House.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

And then,

On motion of Mr. Blount, at 12 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m., the House took a recess for one hour.

AFTER THE RECESS.

Mr. Atkins, from the committee appointed to wait upon the President of the United States, reported that the committee had discharged the duty imposed upon them, and that the President had informed the committee that he would make a communication to the two Houses immediately;

When

A message in writing was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Rogers, his private secretary, which message, by unanimous consent, was laid before the House and read, as follows, viz:

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Our heartfelt gratitude is due to the Divine Being, who holds in His hands the destinies of nations, for the continued bestowal, during the last year, of countless blessings upon our country.

We are at peace with all other nations. Our public credit has greatly improved, and is, perhaps, now stronger than ever before. Abundant harvests have rewarded the labors of those who till the soil, our manufacturing industries are reviving, and it is believed that general prosperity, which has been so long anxiously looked for, is at last within our reach.

The enjoyment of health by our people generally has, however, been interrupted, during the past season, by the prevalence of a fatal pestilence, the yellow-fever, in some portions of the southern States, creating an emergency which called for prompt and extraordinary measures of relief. The disease appeared as an epidemic at New Orleans and at other places on the lower Mississippi, soon after midsummer. It was rapidly spread by fugitives from the infected cities and towns, and did not disappear until early in November. The States of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee have suffered severely. About one hundred thousand cases are believed to have occurred, of which about twenty thousand, according to intelligent estimates, proved fatal. It is impossible to estimate with any approach to accuracy the loss to the country occasioned by this epidemic. It is to be reckoned by the hundred millions of dollars. The suffering and destitution that resulted, excited the deepest sympathy in all parts of the Union. Physicians and nurses hastened from every quarter to the assistance of the afflicted communities. Voluntary contributions of money and supplies, in every needed form, were speedily and generously furnished. The Government was able to respond in some measure to the call for help, by providing tents, medicines, and food for the sick and destitute, the requisite directions for the purpose being given, in the confident expectation that this action of the Executive would receive the sanction of Congress. About eighteen hundred tents, and rations of the value of about twenty-five thousand dollars, were sent to cities and towns which applied for them, full details of which will be furnished to Congress by the proper Department.

The fearful spread of this pestilence, has awakened a very general public sentiment in favor of national sanitary administration, which shall not only control quarantine, but have the sanitary supervision of internal commerce in times of epidemics, and hold an advisory relation to the State and municipal health authorities, with power to deal with whatever endangers the public health, and which the municipal and State authorities are unable to regulate. The national quarantine act approved April 29, 1878, which was passed too late in the last session of Congress to provide the means for carrying it into practical operation, during the past season, is a step in the direction here indicated. In view of the necessity for the most effective measures, by quarantine and otherwise, for the protection of our sea-ports, and the country generally, from this and other epidemics, it is recommended that Congress give to the whole subject early and careful consideration.

The permanent pacification of the country by the complete protection of all citizens in every civil and political right continues to be of paramount interest with the great body of our people. Every step in this direction is welcomed with public approval, and every interruption of steady and uniform progress to the desired consummation awakens general uneasiness and wide-spread condemnation. The recent congressional elections have furnished a direct and trustworthy test of the advance thus far made in the practical establishment of the right of suffrage, secured by the Constitution to the liberated race in the Southern States. All disturbing influences, real or imaginary, had been removed from all of these States.

The three constitutional amendments, which conferred freedom and equality of civil and political rights upon the colored people of the South, were adopted by the concurrent action of the great body of good citizens who maintained the authority of the National Government and the integrity and perpetuity of the Union at such a cost of treasure and life, as a wise and necessary embodiment in the organic law of the just results of the war. The people of the former slave-holding States accepted these results, and gave, in every practicable form, assurances that the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth amendments, and laws passed in pursuance thereof, should, in good faith, be enforced, rigidly and impartially, in letter and spirit, to the end that the humblest citizen, without distinction of race or color, should, under them, receive full and equal protection in person and property and in political rights and privileges. By these constitutional amendments, the southern section of the Union obtained a large increase of political power in Congress and in the Electoral College, and the country justly expected that elections would proceed, as to the enfranchised race, upon the same circumstances of legal and constitutional freedom and protection which obtained in all the other States of the Union. The friends of law and order looked forward to the conduct of these elections, as offering to the general judgment of the country an important opportunity to measure the degree in which the right of suffrage could be exercised by the colored people, and would be respected by their fellow-citizens; but a more general enjoyment of freedom of suffrage by the colored people, and a more just and generous protection of that freedom by the communities of which they form a part, were generally anticipated than the record of the elections discloses. In some of those States in which the colored people have been unable to make their opinions felt in the elections, the result is mainly due to influences not easily measured or remedied by legal protection; but in the States of Louisiana and South Carolina at large, and in some particular congressional districts outside of those States, the records of the elections seem to compel the conclusion that the rights of the colored voters have been overridden, and their participation in the elections not permitted to be either general or free.

It will be for the Congress for which these elections were held, to make such examinations into their conduct as may be appropriate to determine the validity of the claims of members to their seats. In the meanwhile it becomes the duty of the Executive and Judicial Departments of the Government, each in its province, to inquire into and punish violations of the laws of the United States which have occurred. I can but repeat what I said in this connection in my last message, that whatever authority rests with me to this end I shall not hesitate to put forth, and I am unwilling to forego a renewed appeal to the legislatures, the courts, the executive authorities, and the people of the States where these wrongs have been perpetrated, to give their assistance towards bringing to justice the offenders and preventing a repetition of the crimes. No means within my power will be spared to obtain a full and fair investigation of the alleged crimes, and to secure the conviction and just punishment of the guilty.

It is to be observed that the principal appropriation made for the Department of Justice at the last session contained the following clause: "And for defraying the expenses which may be incurred in the enforcement of the act approved February twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, entitled 'An act to amend an act approved May thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy, entitled An act to enforce the rights of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of the Union, and for other purposes,' or any acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto."

It is the opinion of the Attorney General that the expenses of these proceedings will largely exceed the amount which was thus provided, and I rely confidently upon Congress to make adequate appropriations to enable the Executive Department to enforce the laws.

I respectfully urge upon your attention that the congressional elections, in every district, in a very important sense, are justly a matter of political interest and concern throughout the whole country. Each State, every political party, is entitled to the share of power which is conferred by the legal and constitutional suffrage. It is the right of every citizen, possessing the qualifications prescribed by law, to cast one unintimidated ballot, and to have his ballot honestly counted. So long as the exercise of this power and the enjoyment of this right are common and equal, practically as well as formally, submission to the results of the suffrage will be accorded loyally and cheerfully, and all the departments of Government will feel the true vigor of the popular will thus expressed. No temporary or administrative interests of Government, however urgent or weighty, will ever displace the zeal of our people in defence of the primary rights of citizenship. They understand that the protection of liberty requires the maintenance, in full vigor, of the manly methods of free speech, free press, and free suffrage, and will sustain the full authority of Government to enforce the laws which are framed to preserve these inestimable rights. The material progress and welfare of the States depend on the protection afforded to their citizens. There can be no peace without such protection, no prosperity without peace, and the whole country is deeply interested in the growth and prosperity of all its parts.

While the country has not yet reached complete unity of feeling and reciprocal confidence between the communities so lately and so seriously estranged, I feel an absolute assurance that the tendencies are in that direction, and with increasing force. The power of public opinion will override all political prejudices, and all sectional or State attachments, in demanding that all over our wide territory the name and character of citizen of the United States shall mean one and the same thing, and carry with them unchallenged security and respect.

Our relations with other countries continue peaceful. Our neutrality in contests between foreign powers has been maintained and respected.

The Universal Exposition held at Paris during the past summer has been attended by large numbers of our citizens. The brief period allowed for the preparation and arrangement of the contributions of our citizens to this great Exposition was well employed in energetic and judicious efforts to overcome this disadvantage. These efforts, led and directed by the Commissioner General, were remarkably successful, and the exhibition of the products of American industry was creditable and gratifying in scope and character. The reports of the United States commissioners, giving its results in detail, will be duly laid before you. Our participation in this international competition for the favor and the trade of the world may be expected to produce useful and important results, in promoting intercourse, friendship, and commerce with other nations.

In accordance with the provisions of the act of February 28, 1878, three commissioners were appointed to an international conference on the subject of adopting a common ratio between gold and silver, for the purpose of establishing, internationally, the use of bimetallic money, and securing fixity of relative value between those metals.

Invitations were addressed to the various Governments which had expressed a willingness to participate in its deliberations. The conference held its meetings in Paris, in August last. The report of the commissioners, herewith submitted, will show its results. No common ratio between gold and silver could be agreed upon by the conference. The general conclusion was reached that it is necessary to maintain in the world the monetary functions of silver as well as of gold, leaving the selection of the use of one or the other of these two metals, or of both, to be made by each State.

Congress having appropriated at its last session the sum of $5,500,000 to pay the award of the Joint Commission at Halifax, if, after correspondence with the British Government, on the subject of the conformity of the award to the requirements of the treaty and to the terms of the question thereby submitted to the Commission, the President shall deem it his duty to make the payment, communications upon these points were addressed to the British Government through the legation of the United States at London. Failing to obtain the concurrence of the British Government in the views of this Government respecting the award, I have deemed it my duty to tender the sum named, within the year fixed by the treaty, accompanied by a notice of the grounds of the payment, and a protest against any other construction of the same. The correspondence upon this subject will be laid before you.

The Spanish Government has officially announced the termination of the insurrection in Cuba, and the restoration of peace throughout that island. Confident expectations are expressed of a revival of trade and prosperity, which it is earnestly hoped may prove well-founded. Numerous claims of American citizens for relief for injuries or restoration of property, have been among the incidents of the long-continued hostilities. Some of these claims are in process of adjustment by Spain, and the others are promised early and careful consideration.

The treaty made with Italy, in regard to reciprocal consular privileges, has been duly ratified and proclaimed.

No questions of grave importance have arisen with any other of the European powers.

The Japanese Government has been desirous of a revision of such parts of its treaties with foreign powers as relate to commerce, and, it is understood, has addressed to each of the treaty powers a request to open negotiations with that view. The United States Government has been inclined to regard the matter favorably. Whatever restrictions upon trade with Japan are found injurious to that people cannot but affect injuriously nations holding commercial intercourse with them. Japan, after a long period of seclusion, has within the past few years made rapid strides in the path of enlightenment and progress, and, not unreasonably, is looking forward to the time when her relations with the nations of Europe and America shall be assimilated to those which they hold with each other. A treaty looking to this end has been made, which will be submitted for the consideration of the Senate.

After an interval of several years, the Chinese Government has again sent envoys to the United States. They have been received, and a permanent legation is now established here by that Government. It is not doubted that this step will be of advantage to both nations in promoting friendly relations and removing causes of difference.

The treaty with the Samoan Islands, having been duly ratified and accepted on the part of both Governments, is now in operation, and a survey and soundings of the harbor of Pago-Pago have been made by a naval vessel of the United States, with a view of its occupation as a naval station, if found desirable to the service.

Since the resumption of diplomatic relations with Mexico, correspondence has been opened and still continues between the two Governments upon the various questions which at one time seemed to endanger their relations. While no formal agreement has been reached as to the troubles on the border, much has been done to repress and diminish them. The effective force of United States troops on the Rio Grande, by a strict and faithful compliance with instructions, has done much to remove the sources of dispute, and it is now understood that a like force of Mexican troops on the other side of the river is also making an energetic movement against the marauding Indian tribes. This Government looks with the greatest satisfaction upon every evidence of strength in the national authority of Mexico, and upon every effort put forth to prevent or to punish incursions upon our territory. Reluctant to assume any action or attitude in the control of these incursions, by military movements across the border, not imperatively demanded for the protection of the lives and property of our own citizens, I shall take the earliest opportunity, consistent with the proper discharge of this plain duty, to recognize the ability of the Mexican Government to restrain effectively violations of our territory. It is proposed to hold next year an International Exhibition in Mexico, and it is believed that the display of the agricultural and manufacturing products of the two nations will tend to better understanding and increased commercial intercourse between their people.

With Brazil and the Republics of Central and South America some steps have been taken toward the development of closer commercial intercourse. Diplomatic relations have been resumed with Columbia and with Bolivia. A boundary question between the Argentine Republic and Paraguay has been submitted by those Governments for arbitration to the President of the United States, and I have, after careful examination, given a decision upon it.

A naval expedition up the Amazon and Madeira rivers has brought back information valuable both for scientific and commercial purposes. A like expedition is about visiting the coast of Africa and the Indian Ocean. The reports of diplomatic and consular officers in relation to the development of our foreign commerce have furnished many facts that have proved of public interest, and have stimulated to practical exertion the enterprise of our people.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury furnishes a detailed statement of the operations of that Department of the Government and of the condition of the public finances.

The ordinary revenues from all sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1878, were $257,763,878.70; the ordinary expenditures for the same period were $236,964,326.80, leaving a surplus revenue for the year of $20,799,551.90.

The receipts for the present fiscal year, ending June 30, 1879, actual and estimated, are as follows: Actual receipts for the first quarter commencing July 1, 1878, $73,389,743.43; estimated receipts for the remaining three-quarters of the year, $191,110,256.57; total receipts for the current fiscal year, actual and estimated, $264,500,000. The expenditures for the same period will be, actual and estimated, as follows: For the quarter commencing July 1, 1878, actual expenditures, $73,344,573.27; and for the remaining three-quarters of the year the expenditures are estimated at $166,755,426.73, making the total expenditures $240,100,000; and leaving an estimated surplus revenue for the year ending June 30, 1879, of $24,400,000.

The total receipts during the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1880, estimated according to existing laws, will be $264,500,000; and the estimated ordinary expenditures, for the same period, will be $236,320,412.68; leaving a surplus of $28,179,587.32 for that year.

In the foregoing statements of expenditures, actual and estimated, no amount is allowed for the sinking-fund provided for by the act approved February 25, 1862, which requires that one per cent. of the entire debt of the United States shall be purchased or paid within each fiscal year, to be set apart as a sinking-fund. There has been, however, a substantial compliance with the conditions of the law. By its terms, the public debt should have been reduced between 1862 and the close of the last fiscal year, $518,361,806.28; the actual reduction of the ascertained debt, in that period, has been $720,644,739.61; being in excess of the reduction required by the sinking-fund act—$202,282,933.33.

The amount of the public debt, less cash in the Treasury, November 1, 1878, was $2,024,200,083.18—a reduction, since the same date last year, of $23,150,617.39.

The progress made during the last year, in refunding the public debt at lower rates of interest, is very gratifying. The amount of four per cent. bonds sold during the present year prior to November 23, 1878, is $100,270,900, and six per cent. bonds, commonly known as five-twenties, to an equal amount, have been, or will be redeemed as calls mature.

It has been the policy of the Department to place the four per cent. bonds within easy reach of every citizen who desires to invest his savings, whether small or great, in these securities. The Secretary of the Treasury recommends that the law be so modified that small sums may be invested, and that through the post-offices or other agents of the Government the freest opportunity may be given in all parts of the country for such investments.

The best mode suggested is that the Department be authorized to issue certificates of deposit, of the denomination of ten dollars, bearing interest at the rate of 3.65 per cent. per annum, and convertible at any time within one year after their issue into the four per cent. bonds authorized by the refunding act, and to be issued only in exchange for United States notes sent to the Treasury by mail or otherwise. Such a provision of law, supported by suitable regulations, would enable any person readily, without cost or risk, to convert his money into an interest-bearing security of the United States, and the money so received could be applied to the redemption of six per cent. bonds.

The coinage of gold during the last fiscal year was $52,798,980. The coinage of silver dollars, under the act passed February 28, 1878, amounted on the 23d of November, 1878, to $19,814,550, of which amount $4,984,947 are in circulation, and the balance, $14,829,603, is still in the possession of the Government.

With views unchanged with regard to the act under which the coinage of silver proceeds, it has been the purpose of the Secretary faithfully to execute the law, and to afford a fair trial to the measure.

In the present financial condition of the country, I am persuaded that the welfare of legitimate business and industry of every description will be best promoted by abstaining from all attempts to make radical changes in the existing financial legislation. Let it be understood that during the coming year the business of the country will be undisturbed by governmental interference with the laws affecting it, and we may confidently expect that the resumption of specie payments, which will take place at the appointed time, will be successfully and easily maintained, and that it will be followed by a healthful and enduring revival of business prosperity.

Let the healing influence of time, the inherent energies of our people, and the boundless resources of our country, have a fair opportunity, and relief from present difficulties will surely follow.

The report of the Secretary of War shows that the Army has been well and economically supplied, that our small force has been actively employed, and has faithfully performed all the service required of it. The morale of the Army has improved, and the number of desertions has materially decreased during the year.

The Secretary recommends—

1. That a pension be granted to the widow of the late Lieutenant Henry H. Benner, 18th Infantry, who lost his life by yellow-fever while in command of the steamer "J. M. Chambers," sent with supplies for the relief of sufferers in the South from that disease.

2. The establishment of the annuity scheme for the benefit of the heirs of deceased officers, as suggested by the Paymaster General.

3. The adoption by Congress of a plan for the publication of the records of the War of the Rebellion, now being prepared for that purpose.

4. The increase of the extra per diem of soldier-teachers employed in post-schools, and liberal appropriations for the erection of buildings for schools and libraries at the different posts.

5. The repeal or amendment of the act of June 18, 1878, forbidding the "use of the Army as a posse comitatus, or otherwise, for the purpose of executing the laws, except in such cases and under such circumstances as may be expressly authorized by the Constitution or by act of Congress."

6. The passage of a joint resolution of Congress legalizing the issues of rations, tents, and medicines which were made for the relief of sufferers from yellow-fever.

7. That provision be made for the erection of a fire-proof building for the preservation of certain valuable records, now constantly exposed to destruction by fire.

These recommendations are all commended to your favorable consideration.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy shows that the Navy has improved during the last fiscal year. Work has been done on seventy-five vessels, ten of which have been thoroughly repaired, and made ready for sea. Two others are in rapid progress towards completion. The total expenditures of the year, including the amount appropriated for the deficiencies of the previous year, were $17,468,392.65. The actual expenses chargeable to the year, exclusive of these deficiencies, were $13,306,914.09, or $767,199.18 less than those of the previous year, and $4,928,677.74 less than the expenses, including the deficiencies. The estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, are $14,562,381.45—exceeding the appropriations of the present year only $33,949.75; which excess is occasioned by the demands of the Naval Academy and the Marine Corps, as explained in the Secretary's report. The appropriations for the present fiscal year are $14,528,431.70, which, in the opinion of the Secretary, will be ample for all the current expenses of the Department during the year. The amount drawn from the Treasury from July 1, to November 1, 1878, is $4,740,544.14, of which $70,980.75 has been refunded, leaving as the expenditure for that period $4,669,563.39, or $520,899.24 less than the corresponding period of the last fiscal year.

The report of the Postmaster General embraces a detailed statement of the operations of the Post Office Department. The expenditures of that Department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1878, were $34,165,084.49. The receipts, including sales of stamps, money-order business, and official stamps, were $29,277,516.95. The sum of $290,436.90, included in the foregoing statement of expenditures, is chargeable to preceding years, so that the actual expenditures for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1878, are $33,874,647.50. The amount drawn from the Treasury on appropriations, in addition to the revenues of the Department, was $5,307,652.82. The expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, are estimated at $36,571,900, and the receipts from all sources at $30,664,023.90, leaving a deficiency to be appropriated out of the Treasury of $5,907,876.10. The report calls attention to the fact that the compensation of postmasters and of railroads for carrying the mail is regulated by law, and that the failure of Congress to appropriate the amounts required for these purposes does not relieve the Government of responsibility, but necessarily increases the deficiency bills which Congress will be called upon to pass.

In providing for the postal service, the following questions are presented: Should Congress annually appropriate a sum for its expenses largely in excess of its revenues, or should such rates of postage be established as will make the Department self-sustaining? Should the postal service be reduced by excluding from the mails, matter which does not pay its way? Should the number of post-routes be diminished? Should other methods be adopted which will increase the revenues or diminish the expenses of the postal service?

The International Postal Congress, which met at Paris May 1, 1878, and continued in session until June 4 of the same year, was composed of delegates from nearly all the civilized countries of the world. It adopted a new convention, to take the place of the treaty concluded at Berne October 9, 1874; which goes into effect on the 1st of April, 1879, between the countries whose delegates have signed it. It was ratified and approved, by and with the consent of the President, August 13, 1878. A synopsis of this Universal Postal Convention will be found in the report of the Postmaster General, and the full text in the appendix thereto. In its origin the Postal Union comprised twenty-three countries, having a population of three hundred and fifty millions of people. On the 1st of April next it will comprise forty-three countries and colonies, with a population of more than six hundred and fifty millions of people, and will soon, by the accession of the few remaining countries and colonies which maintain organized postal services, constitute, in fact as well as in name, as its new title indicates, a Universal Union, regulating, upon a uniform basis of cheap postage-rates, the postal intercourse between all civilized nations.

Some embarrassment has arisen out of the conflict between the customs laws of this country and the provisions of the Postal Convention, in regard to the transmission of foreign books and newspapers to this country by mail. It is hoped that Congress will be able to devise some means of reconciling the difficulties which have thus been created, so as to do justice to all parties involved.

The business of the Supreme Court, and of the courts in many of the circuits, has increased to such an extent during the past year that additional legislation is imperative to relieve and prevent the delay of justice and possible oppression to suitors, which is thus occasioned. The encumbered condition of these dockets is presented anew in the report of the Attorney General, and the remedy suggested is earnestly urged for congressional action. The creation of additional circuit judges, as proposed, would afford a complete remedy, and would involve an expense—at the present rate of salaries—of not more than $60,000 a year.

The annual reports of the Secretary of the Interior and of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs present an elaborate account of the present condition of the Indian tribes and of that branch of the public service which ministers to their interests. While the conduct of the Indians generally has been orderly and their relations with their neighbors friendly and peaceable, two local disturbances have occurred, which were deplorable in their character, but remained, happily, confined to a comparatively small number of Indians. The discontent among the Bannocks, which led first to some acts of violence on the part of some members of the tribe and finally to the outbreak, appears to have been caused by an insufficiency of food on the reservation, and this insufficiency to have been owing to the inadequacy of the appropriations made by Congress to the wants of the Indians at a time when the Indians were prevented from supplying the deficiency by hunting. After an arduous pursuit by the troops of the United States, and several engagements, the hostile Indians were reduced to subjection, and the larger part of them surrendered themselves as prisoners. In this connection I desire to call attention to the recommendation made by the Secretary of the Interior, that a sufficient fund be placed at the disposal of the Executive, to be used, with proper accountability, at discretion, in sudden emergencies of the Indian service.

The other case of disturbance was that of a band of Northern Cheyennes, who suddenly left their reservation in the Indian Territory and marched rapidly through the States of Kansas and Nebraska in the direction of their old hunting grounds, committing murders and other crimes on their way. From documents accompanying the report of the Secretary of the Interior it appears that this disorderly band was as fully supplied with the necessities of life as the four thousand seven hundred other Indians who remained quietly on the reservation, and that the disturbance was caused by men of a restless and mischievous disposition among the Indians themselves. Almost the whole of this band have surrendered to the military authorities, and it is a gratifying fact that when some of them had taken refuge in the camp of the Red Cloud Sioux, with whom they had been in friendly relations, the Sioux held them as prisoners and readily gave them up to the officers of the United States, thus giving new proof of the loyal spirit which, alarming rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, they have uniformly shown ever since the wishes they expressed at the council of September, 1877, had been complied with.

Both the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of War unite in the recommendation that provision be made by Congress for the organization of a corps of mounted "Indian auxiliaries," to be under the control of the army, and to be used for the purpose of keeping the Indians on their reservations and preventing or repressing disturbance on their part. I earnestly concur in this recommendation. It is believed that the organization of such a body of Indian cavalry, receiving a moderate pay from the Government, would considerably weaken the restless element among the Indians by withdrawing from it a number of young men and giving them congenial employment under the Government, it being a matter of experience that Indians in our service almost without exception are faithful in the performance of the duties assigned to them. Such an organization would materially aid the army in the accomplishment of a task for which its numerical strength is sometimes found insufficient.

But, while the employment of force for the prevention or repression of Indian troubles is of occasional necessity, and wise preparation should be made to that end, greater reliance must be placed on humane and civilizing agencies for the ultimate solution of what is called the Indian problem. It may be very difficult, and require much patient effort, to curb the unruly spirit of the savage Indian to the restraints of civilized life, but experience shows that it is not impossible: Many of the tribes which are now quiet and orderly and self-supporting were once as savage as any that at present roam over the plains or in the mountains of the far west, and were then considered inaccessible to civilizing influences. It may be impossible to raise them fully up to the level of the white population of the United States; but we should not forget that they are the aborigines of the country, and called the soil their own on which our people have grown rich, powerful, and happy. We owe it to them as a moral duty to help them in attaining at least that degree of civilization which they may be able to reach. It is not only our duty—it is also our interest to do so. Indians who have become agriculturists or herdsmen, and feel an interest in property, will thenceforth cease to be a warlike and disturbing element. It is also a well-authenticated fact that Indians are apt to be peaceable and quiet when their children are at school, and I am gratified to know, from the expressions of Indians themselves and from many concurring reports, that there is a steadily increasing desire, even among Indians belonging to comparatively wild tribes, to have their children educated. I invite attention to the reports of the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, touching the experiment recently inaugurated, in taking fifty Indian children, boys and girls, from different tribes, to the Hampton Normal Agricultural Institute, in Virginia, where they are to receive an elementary English education and training in agriculture and other useful work, to be returned to their tribes, after the completed course, as interpreters, instructors, and examples. It is reported that the officer charged with the selection of those children might have had thousands of young Indians sent with him had it been possible to make provision for them. I agree with the Secretary of the Interior in saying that "the result of this interesting experiment, if favorable, may be destined to become an important factor in the advancement of civilization among the Indians."

The question, whether a change in the control of the Indian service should be made, was, at the last session of Congress, referred to a committee for inquiry and report. Without desiring to anticipate that report, I venture to express the hope that in the decision of so important a question, the views expressed above may not be lost sight of, and that the decision, whatever it may be, will arrest further agitation of this subject, such agitation being apt to produce a disturbing effect upon the service as well as on the Indians themselves.

In the enrolment of the bill making appropriations for sundry civil expenses, at the last session of Congress, that portion which provided for the continuation of the Hot Springs commission was omitted. As the commission had completed the work of taking testimony on the many conflicting claims, the suspension of their labors, before determining the rights of claimants, threatened, for a time, to embarrass the interests, not only of the Government, but also of a large number of the citizens of Hot Springs, who were waiting for final action on their claims before beginning contemplated improvements. In order to prevent serious difficulties, which were apprehended, and at the solicitation of many leading citizens of Hot Springs, and others interested in the welfare of the town, the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to request the late commissioners to take charge of the records of their proceedings, and to perform such work as could properly be done by them under such circumstances, to facilitate the future adjudication of the claims at an early day, and to preserve the status of the claimants until their rights should be finally determined. The late commissioners complied with that request, and report that the testimony, in all the cases, has been written out, examined, briefed, and so arranged as to facilitate an early settlement when authorized by law. It is recommended that the requisite authority be given at as early a day in the session as possible, and that a fair compensation be allowed the late commissioners for the expense incurred and the labor performed by them since the 25th of June last.

I invite the attention of Congress to the recommendations made by the Secretary of the Interior with regard to the preservation of the timber on the public lands of the United States. The protection of the public property is one of the first duties of the Government. The Department of the Interior should, therefore, be enabled by sufficient appropriations to enforce the laws in that respect. But this matter appears still more important as a question of public economy. The rapid destruction of our forests is an evil fraught with the gravest consequences, especially in the mountainous districts, where the rocky slopes, once denuded of their trees, will remain so forever. There the injury, once done, cannot be repaired. I fully concur with the Secretary of the Interior in the opinion that, for this reason, legislation touching the public timber in the mountainous States and Territories of the West should be especially well considered, and that existing laws in which the destruction of the forests is not sufficiently guarded against should be speedily modified. A general law concerning this important subject appears to me to be a matter of urgent public necessity.

From the organization of the Government, the importance of encouraging, by all possible means, the increase of our agricultural productions has been acknowledged and urged upon the attention of Congress and the people as the surest and readiest means of increasing our substantial and enduring prosperity.

The words of Washington are as applicable to-day as when, in his eighth annual message, he said: "It is not to be doubted that with reference either to individual or national welfare, agriculture is of primary importance. In proportion as nations advance in population and other circumstances of maturity, this truth becomes more apparent, and renders the cultivation of the soil more and more an object of public patronage. Institutions for promoting it grow up, supported by the public purse—and to what object can it be dedicated with greater propriety? Among the means which have been employed to this end, none have been attended with greater success than the establishment of boards composed of proper characters, charged with collecting and diffusing information, and enabled, by premiums and small pecuniary aids, to encourage and assist the spirit of discovery and improvement, this species of establishment contributing doubly to the increase of improvement by stimulating to enterprise and experiment, and by drawing to a common centre the results everywhere of individual skill and observation, and spreading them thence over the whole nation. Experience accordingly hath shown that they are very cheap instruments of immense national benefit."

The preponderance of the agricultural, over any other interest in the United States, entitles it to all the consideration claimed for it by Washington. About one-half of the population of the United States is engaged in agriculture. The value of the agricultural products of the United States for the year 1878, is estimated at three thousand millions of dollars. The exports of agricultural products for the year 1877, as appears from the report of the Bureau of Statistics, were five hundred and twenty-four millions of dollars. The great extent of our country, with its diversity of soil and climate, enables us to produce within our own borders, and by our own labor, not only the necessities but most of the luxuries that are consumed in civilized countries. Yet, notwithstanding our advantages of soil, climate, and intercommunication, it appears from the statistical statements in the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture, that we import annually from foreign lands many millions of dollars' worth of agricultural products which could be raised in our own country.

Numerous questions arise in the practice of advanced agriculture which can only be answered by experiments, often costly and sometimes fruitless, which are beyond the means of private individuals, and are a just and proper charge on the whole nation for the benefit of the nation. It is good policy, especially in times of depression and uncertainty in other business pursuits, with a vast area of uncultivated, and hence unproductive territory, wisely opened to homestead settlement, to encourage, by every proper and legitimate means, the occupation and tillage of the soil. The efforts of the Department of Agriculture to stimulate old and introduce new agricultural industries, to improve the quality and increase the quantity of our products, to determine the value of old or establish the importance of new methods of culture, are worthy of your careful and favorable consideration, and assistance by such appropriations of money and enlargement of facilities as may seem to be demanded by the present favorable conditions for the growth and rapid development of this important interest.

The abuse of animals in transit is widely attracting public attention. A national convention of societies specially interested in the subject has recently met at Baltimore, and the facts developed, both in regard to cruelties to animals and the effect of such cruelties upon the public health, would seem to demand the careful consideration of Congress, and the enactment of more efficient laws for the prevention of these abuses.

The report of the Commissioner of the Bureau of Education shows very gratifying progress throughout the country, in all the interests committed to the care of this important office. The report is especially encouraging with respect to the extension of the advantages of the common-school system, in sections of the country where the general enjoyment of the privilege of free schools is not yet attained.

To education more than to any other agency we are to look, as the resource for the advancement of the people, in the requisite knowledge and appreciation of their rights and responsibilities as citizens, and I desire to repeat the suggestion contained in my former message in behalf of the enactment of appropriate measures by Congress for the purpose of supplementing, with national aid, the local systems of education in the several States.

Adequate accommodations for the great library, which is overgrowing the capacity of the rooms now occupied at the Capitol, should be provided without further delay. This invaluable collection of books, manuscripts, and illustrative art, has grown to such proportions, in connection with the copyright system of the country, as to demand the prompt and careful attention of Congress to save it from injury in its present crowded and insufficient quarters. As this library is national in its character, and must, from the nature of the case, increase even more rapidly in the future than in the past, it cannot be doubted that the people will sanction any wise expenditure to preserve it and to enlarge its usefulness.

The appeal of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution for the means to organize, exhibit, and make available for the public benefit the articles now stored away belonging to the National Museum, I heartily recommend to your favorable consideration.

The attention of Congress is again invited to the condition of the river-front of the city of Washington. It is a matter of vital importance to the health of the residents of the National Capital, both temporary and permanent, that the low lands in front of the city, now subject to tidal overflow, should be reclaimed. In their present condition, these flats obstruct the drainage of the city, and are a dangerous source of malarial poison. The reclamation will improve the navigation of the river, by restricting and consequently deepening its channel; and is also of importance, when considered in connection with the extension of the public ground and the enlargement of the park, west and south of the Washington Monument. The report of the board of survey, heretofore ordered by act of Congress, on the improvement of the harbor of Washington and Georgetown, is respectfully commended to consideration.

The report of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia presents a detailed statement of the affairs of the District.

The relative expenditures by the United States and the District for local purposes is contrasted, showing that the expenditures by the people of the District greatly exceed those of the General Government. The exhibit is made in connection with estimates for the requisite repair of the defective pavements and sewers of the city, which is a work of immediate necessity, and, in the same connection, a plan is presented for the permanent funding of the outstanding securities of the District.

The benevolent, reformatory, and penal institutions of the District are all entitled to the favorable attention of Congress. The Reform School needs additional buildings and teachers. Appropriations which will place all of these institutions in a condition to become models of usefulness and beneficence, will be regarded by the country as liberality wisely bestowed.

The commissioners, with evident justice, request attention to the discrimination made by Congress against the District in the donation of land for the support of the public schools, and ask that the same liberality that has been shown to the inhabitants of the various States and Territories of the United States, may be extended to the District of Columbia.

The commissioners also invite attention to the damage inflicted upon public and private interests by the present location of the depots and switching-tracks of the several railroads entering the city, and ask for legislation looking to their removal. The recommendations and suggestions contained in the report will, I trust, receive the careful consideration of Congress.

Sufficient time has, perhaps, not elapsed since the reorganization of the government of the District, under the recent legislation of Congress, for the expression of a confident opinion as to its successful operation; but the practical results already attained are so satisfactory that the friends of the new government may well urge upon Congress the wisdom of its continuance, without essential modification, until, by actual experience, its advantages and defects may be more fully ascertained.

R. B. HAYES.

"There are some ugly rumors afloat as to the manner in which the corruption fund to secure the passage of the bill was disposed of and who received it. An indignant property-owner avers that a Vermont Representative got away with $25,000, and a Chicago member and a Maryland member with $12,250 apiece, and that the balance of the fund went to the Senate committee";

Whereas the facts alleged in said article and the averment of "an indignant property-owner," published in said article, constitute the charge of the crime of accepting a bribe by members of Congress, the punishment for which is provided for in section 5500 of the Revised Statutes; and

Whereas the substance of said article and the charges contained therein have been telegraphed by special dispatches and by the Associated Press all over the country and otherwise copied and spread out by many newspapers: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service be, and it is hereby, directed to inquire into the said charges against certain members of this House, and to report at any time to this House whether any member, especially any member from Vermont, Chicago, or Maryland, is guilty of any act as charged in said article of the Washington Post; and the committee is authorized to send for persons and papers.

By Mr. Townshend:

Whereas the Secretary of the Treasury has informed this House in his annual report of December 2, 1878, that "a satisfactory arrangement has been made by which all drafts on the banks held by the Treasury are to be paid at the clearing-house (meaning the New York Clearing-House Association), and all drafts on the Treasury held by them are to be paid to the clearing-house at the office of the assistant treasurer in United States notes"; and

Whereas said clearing-house association, composed of forty-five national banks and thirteen State banks, has adopted, among other rules for the government of the banks in said association, for the transaction of business after the 1st day of January, 1879, a rule prohibiting payment of balances at the clearing-house in silver dollars, except as subsidiary coin in small sums (say under $10); and

Whereas such a rule is in violation of the law which has made silver dollars of 412½ grains of standard silver a full legal tender for all public or private debts, and is an unlawful conspiracy to nullify a law of the United States: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, requested to inform this House whether the Treasury Department has acquiesced in and is to be governed by said rule in its settlements with the banks of said association.

Whereas the New York Clearing-House Association, composed of forty-five national banks and other banking associations, has adopted, among other rules for the government of the banks in said association, for the transaction of business after the 1st day of January, 1879, a rule prohibiting payment of balances at the clearing-house in silver dollars, except as subsidiary coin, in small sums (say under $10); and

Whereas such a rule is in violation of the law which has made silver dollars of 412½ grains of standard silver a legal tender for all public or private debts, and is an unlawful conspiracy to nullify a law of the United States: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary is hereby instructed to advise this House whether, under the present law, said national banks have by such conspiracy forfeited their charters, or whether further legislation is necessary to revoke the charter of any national banking association which has or may enter into such a conspiracy, or which may refuse to receive said silver dollars as legal tenders; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. Burchard:

Add to the bill the following sections:

SEC. 2. That for the trial and determination of all causes and proceedings cognizable and triable in the district court of the United States for the district of Colorado, as established by the act entitled "An act to further the administration of justice in the State of Colorado," approved June twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-six, the said district shall be separated into three divisions, as follows: All that part of said district lying within the following-named counties as now constituted, to wit: the counties of Bent, Las Animas, Pueblo, Huerfano, Fremont, and Custer shall constitute the southern division, and a regular term of said court for said division shall be held annually at Pueblo, to commence on the first Tuesday in February; all that part of said district lying within the following-named counties, to wit: the counties of Costilla, Conejos, Rio Grande, Saguache, Lake, Gunnison, Hinsdale, San Juan, Ouray, and La Plata, together with all that part of the Ute Indian reservation lying south of the thirty-ninth degree of north latitude in said State, shall constitute the western division, and a regular term of said court for said division shall be held annually at Del Norte, to commence on the first Tuesday in August; and the residue of the State of Colorado shall constitute the northern division, and two regular terms of said court for said division shall be held annually at Denver, to commence on the first Tuesday in May and on the first Tuesday in October. And should the judge of said district court fail to attend at the time and place of holding any one of the regular terms of the court for either of the said divisions of the aforesaid district, before the close of the fourth day of any such term, the business pending in such court shall stand adjourned to the next regular term thereof: Provided, That whenever the judge of said court, from any cause, shall fail to hold a regular term of said court for either of said divisions, it shall be his duty, if in his opinion the business in said court shall require, to hold an intermediate term of said court, at such time as he shall, by his order in writing, direct, addressed to the clerk and marshal of said court, at least thirty days previous to the commencement of said term, and to be published in the several newspapers published in the bounds of said divisions the same length of time; and at any and all such intermediate terms the business of any such courts, of every nature and description whatsoever, shall have reference to, and be proceeded with, in the same manner as if the same were a regular term of the said court. And all issues of fact shall be tried at a term of said court to be held in the division where such suit should hereafter be commenced in accordance with the third section of this act. But nothing herein contained shall prevent the said district court from regulating, by general rule, the venue of transitory actions either in law or in equity, and from changing the same for a good cause to be shown.

SEC. 3. That all issues now pending in the said district court shall be tried at the places above prescribed for holding such court within the division where the cause of action may have arisen, unless otherwise ordered by said court, in pursuance of the authority given in the first section of this act; and no process issued or proceedings pending in the said district court shall be avoided or impaired by this change of the time and place of holding such court; but all process, bail bonds, and recognizances returnable at the next term of said court shall be returnable and returned to the court next held at the appropriate place, according to this act, in the same manner as if so made returnable on the face thereof, and shall have full effect accordingly; and all continuances may be made to conform to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 4. That all suits and proceedings hereafter to be brought in the said district court, not of a local nature, shall be brought in a court of the division of the district where the defendant resides; but if there be more than one defendant, and they reside in different divisions of the district, the plaintiff may sue in either division and send duplicate writ or writs to the other defendants, on which the plaintiff or his attorney shall indorse that the writ thus sent is a copy of a writ sued out of a court of the proper division of the said district; and the said writs, when executed and returned into the office from which they issued, shall constitute one suit and be proceeded in accordingly.

SEC. 5. The clerk of the district court for the district of Colorado shall appoint a deputy clerk for said court held at Pueblo and a deputy clerk for said court held at Del Norte, who shall reside and keep their offices at said places respectively. And the said clerk shall reside and keep his office at Denver. Each deputy shall keep in his office full records of all actions and proceedings in the district court held at the same place, and shall have the same power to issue all process from the said court that is or may be given to the clerks of other district courts in like cases.

SEC. 6. That the district attorney and marshal of the district of Colorado shall respectively perform the duties of district attorney and marshal of and for the southern, western, and northern divisions of the district of Colorado as established by this act; and the said marshal shall keep an office and deputy at each of the places where the sessions of the said district court are directed to be held.

SEC. 7. That in addition to the ordinary jurisdiction and powers of a district court of the United States with which the district court of Colorado has been invested, it be, and is hereby, invested, within the limits of the said southern and western divisions of same, with the exercise of concurrent jurisdiction and power, in all civil cases, now exercised by the circuit courts of the United States; and that in all cases where said court shall exercise such jurisdiction writs of error and appeals shall be allowed and taken from the judgment, orders, or decrees of said court to the Supreme Court of the United States, in the same manner and upon the same conditions as appeals may be taken from the circuit courts.

SEC. 8. Any person charged with violating any of the penal or criminal statutes of the United States of which the said district court has jurisdiction shall be proceeded against, by indictment or otherwise, within the division of said district wherein the alleged offense was committed, and shall have his or her trial at a term of the said district court held in the said division, unless for cause shown the judge shall otherwise direct; and grand and petit juries shall be summoned for the several terms of said district court in manner as is now, or may be, provided by law; and jurors shall be selected and drawn from the division of the said district in which they reside and in which the term of the said district court to which they are summoned is held.

SEC. 9. A term of the circuit court of the eighth judicial circuit shall be held at Denver, in said State, upon the first Tuesday in May and the first Tuesday in October in each year. One grand jury and one petit jury shall be summoned, and serve in both the said circuit and district courts, the terms of which are to be held in Denver.

So the amendment was agreed to.

The remaining amendments reported from the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union were then concurred in.

Ordered, That the bill, as amended, be engrossed and read a third time. Being engrossed, the bill was accordingly read the third time and passed.

Mr. Sparks moved to reconsider the vote last taken, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk request the concurrence of the Senate therein. Mr. Harrison, from the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service, submitted the following report:

The Committee on Reform in the Civil Service, to which was referred the following resolution of Mr. Brentano, of Illinois:

"Whereas the Washington Post, a daily newspaper published in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, did, in its issue of July 24, 1878, contain in its editorial columns an article headed, 'Those special assessments—Who are the principal debtors—How the 3.65 clause was passed,' and which article, charging corruption against members of Congress in reference to the bill providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia, concludes as follows:

"There are some ugly rumors afloat as to the manner in which the corruption fund to secure the passage of the bill was disposed of and who received it. An indignant property-owner avers that a Vermont Representative got away with $25,000, and a Chicago member and a Maryland member with $12,250 apiece, and that the balance of the fund went to the Senate committee.'

"Whereas the facts alleged in said article and the averment of an 'indignant property-owner' published in said article constitute the charge of the crime of accepting a bribe by members of Congress, the punishment for which is provided for in section 5500 of the Revised Statutes; and

"Whereas the substance of said article and the charges contained therein have been telegraphed by special dispatches and by the Associated Press all over the country, and otherwise copied and spread out by many newspapers: Therefore,

"Resolved, That the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service be, and it is hereby, directed to inquire into the said charges against certain members of this House, and to report at any time to this House whether any member, especially any member from Vermont, Chicago, or Maryland, is guilty of any act as charged in said article of the Washington Post; and the committee is authorized to send for persons and papers"—having had the same under consideration, most respectfully submit the the following report:

That it brought before it Mr. Stilson Hutchins, editor and publisher of the Washington Post; Mr. Barton, the writer of the article named in said resolution; Mr. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York; and Messrs. Brentano, Hendee, and Henkle, members of this House, and several other witnesses; in fact, all persons suggested to it as being able to give it any information on the subject; that all witnesses were sworn and testified under oath.

Your committee was earnest in its endeavor to bring out the bottom facts, but could not elicit a particle of testimony tending to show that any money was used or any corrupt influences brought to bear to further the passage of the District bill, as alleged in the article named in said resolution.

Mr. Hutchins testified that he heard about the time of the publication of said article rumors of corruption in connection with said bill, but that they made but little impression upon him; that he received several communications on the subject, some of them anonymous, others with fictitious names, and a few with real names signed to them, but that none of them named any particular member of the District Committee or of this House as having been corruptly influenced; that he handed all such communications over to Mr. Barton, one of his staff, with instructions to look into the matter and write an article thereon; that he did not remember and could not recall the name of a single person signed to any of the communications or circulating such rumors; that had he seen the article before publication he would have suppressed the last part, which seemed to locate members suspected of corruption.

Mr. Barton testified that he did look into the matter, but could find no real foundation for the charges; that he could recall but one name signed to any of the communications appearing in the directory; that a paper signed "Indignant property-owner" was also signed by one Johnson, and said Johnson's name was in the directory. He could not remember the first name. We handed him the directory with the request that he refresh his memory. He was unable to do so. The remarkable discovery was then made that there are seventeen columns of Johnsons and only fifteen of Smiths, only one or two other names occupying as much as ten columns. He stated that the charge that the First National Bank of New York had raised a pool for corrupt purposes in connection with the District bill was simply a street rumor, which he did not believe even at the time; that such rumors were started in connection with all District legislation; that as his article did not specifically touch any particular member there was no danger of a libel suit, and therefore all of the communications went to the waste-basket; that he had not heard anything implicating any particular member of this House.

Mr. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, testified that his bank held about a half million of the 3.65 District bonds; held them as an investment, and not as speculation; that they considered the same, at the ruling rate of money for the past year, as worth to them about ninety-three dollars on the hundred; that they were higher before the passage of the bill than after; that they had gone to 85 before the passage of the bill, but had since fallen to about 76 and 78; that another concern, the Mutual Life of New York, held about a million—held them as an investment and not as a speculation; that no money had been used by his bank, or by the Mutual Life, or by any one for them, directly or indirectly, to further the passage of the bill in question or any other bill connected with the District; that neither he, his bank, nor any one connected with it, or the Mutual Life, had ever been approached to raise any money or pool in connection with the matter, and that he had no reason to believe any money had been so raised or expended; that he did not consider that the passage of this bill made his bonds more valuable, and that they had not disposed of them; that they always considered the government bound for the 3.65 bonds, and that this bill did not increase the liability of the government.

Messrs. Brentano, Hendee, and Henkle severally testified that they had not, nor had either one of them, ever heard any intimation that any money was being or had been used to influence legislation in connection with this bill; that neither one of them had ever been approached with any corrupt proposition in connection with it, and they did not believe any money had been so used; that the clause in the bill in reference to the 3.65 bonds had been passed by a unanimous vote of the committee, and its propriety was not questioned; that it had come down as a legacy from as far back as the Forty-third Congress.

The other witnesses, Messrs. Alexander, Offley, Curtis, and MacBride, had heard rumors, but nothing further, and could give us no names or facts connected therewith.

Your committee is, therefore, of the opinion that the publication in the Washington Post of the article referred to in Mr. Brentano's resolution was a wanton and wholly unjustifiable attack upon the integrity of members of this House, calculated to degrade them in the estimation of the public, which is too ready to give credence to what it sees in print, and that it was used to do great injury and injustice to the gentlemen alluded to.

Your committee believe that an enlightened and unfettered press is a very bulwark of liberty and a prop to morality in a free country, but that when it steps from its high calling wantonly to belittle and to calumniate public men directly, or by innuendo and insinuation, it becomes a powerful engine of wrong and is a far-reaching enemy to good morals. A newspaper which boldly exposes wrong-doing among officials and fearlessly tears away the mask which hides a corrupt officer is a true friend of the people; but one which, for the sake of creating a sensation, or to make its columns spicy, attacks the good as well as the bad, or attacks any without warrant of truth or facts, puts itself on a par with the traducer and slanderer—feeds the lowest tastes of the vicious, destroys its influence for good, and by constantly crying “Wolf!” “Wolf!” is unheeded when it calls attention to the real wolf which is preying upon the public.

At the request of the gentlemen who had reason from their locality to think themselves attacked, we recommend that the report and testimony be printed, and that your committee be discharged from further consideration of the subject.

The same having been read, Mr. Harrison demanded the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the report was unanimously adopted.

Ordered, That the said report and testimony be printed.

On motion of Mr. Durham, by unanimous consent, the bill of the House (H. R. 5230) making appropriations for the support of the Military Academy for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and for other purposes, with the amendments of the Senate thereto, were taken from the Speaker's table, the disagreement of the House to the said amendments further insisted on, and the request of the Senate for a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon agreed to.

Ordered, That Mr. Durham, Mr. Clymer, and Mr. A. Herr Smith be the managers at the said conference on the part of the House.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

On motion of Mr. John H. Baker, by unanimous consent, the bill of the House (H. Ordered, That Mr. John H. Baker, Mr. Clymer, and Mr. Singleton be the managers at the said conference on the part of the House.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

So the motion to adjourn was disagreed to.

During the calling of the roll on the said motion, Mr. Conger made the point of order that the House having previously ordered that a recess should be taken at 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m. until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., and the latter hour having arrived, the previous order of the House must be now executed.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the motion to adjourn was the only one by which the House would have the opportunity to change its mind, except the motion to reconsider the vote by which the recess was ordered, which motion was now precluded by the motion to adjourn. If the roll-call was upon a motion relating to the pending bill, it would be the duty of the Chair to execute the order of the House at 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m. by declaring the House to be in recess until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.

The roll-call was then concluded as above given.

And thereupon, in accordance with the previous order, the House took a recess until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.

AFTER THE RECESS.

(7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.)

Mr. Bragg, at 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., moved that the House adjourn; which motion was not agreed to.

So the House refused to lay the bill on the table.

Mr. Hale moved to reconsider the vote last taken, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

The question again recurring on the engrossment and third reading of the bill as amended;

Pending which,

Mr. McMahon, by unanimous consent, submitted the following amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill as amended, viz:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

That an act approved June twenty-third, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, entitled "An act for the creation of a court for the adjudication and disposition of certain moneys received into the Treasury under an award by the tribunal of arbitration constituted by the first article of the treaty concluded at Washington on the eighth of May, anno Domini eighteen hundred and seventy-one, between the United States of America and the Queen of Great Britain," be, and the same hereby is, revived, re-enacted, and continued; all the provisions thereof to take effect from and after the approval of this act, except as changed or modified by this act.

SEC. 2. That the number of judges for said court shall be three; and the agreement of two of the judges shall be necessary to decide any question arising before said court.

SEC. 3. That the judges of the court hereby re-established shall convene and organize, in the city of Washington, as soon as practicable after their appointment; and the court so organized shall exist eighteen months; and all claims provable under this act shall be verified and filed with the clerk of said court within six months from its organization, or they shall be held to be waived and barred.

SEC. 4. That the first class shall be for claims described in section eleven of said original act not already adjudicated, and for claims directly resulting from damage done on the high seas by Confederate cruisers during the late rebellion, including vessels and cargoes attacked and taken on the high seas or pursued by them therefrom, although the loss or damage occurred within four miles of the shore.

In cases of the loss of a whaling-vessel and outfit, the court shall allow, in addition to the compensation provided for in the said original act, the sum of ten per centum, in lieu of freight, upon the value of said vessel and outfit as found by said court.

And upon all judgments heretofore rendered under said act for the loss of a whaling-vessel and outfit, there shall be allowed the said sum of ten per centum upon the awards as made by the court, with six per centum interest thereon from the day from which said original award bore interest until the date of payment.

The second class shall be for claims for additional interest upon judgments which have been awarded and decreed by the said Court of Alabama Claims under the said original act ; such interest to be computed in each case from the time from which interest was allowed in the original judgments, at the rate of two per centum per annum in addition thereto, to the time of payment, as hereinafter provided.

And upon all judgments to be hereafter rendered upon claims of the first class, as herein described, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per centum per annum, instead of four, as provided in the original act.

The third class shall be for claims for the payment of premiums for war risks, whether paid to the corporations, agents, or individuals after the sailing of any confederate cruiser ; in determining which it shall be the duty of the court to deduct any sum in any way received by or paid to the claimant in diminution of the amount paid for any such premium, so that the actual loss only shall be allowed.

SEC. 5. That the judgments rendered by said court under this act shall be paid in currency by the Secretary of the Treasury out of the sum of money paid to the United States pursuant to article seven of the treaty of Washington, and accruing therefrom, not appropriated to claims heretofore proved and allowed under the provisions of said original act and the act extending the time for the filing of claims thereunder.

And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to pay out of said fund, without further adjudication by any court, the ten per centum upon sailing-vessels and their outfit, with interest, as provided in section five of this act, upon all awards heretofore made for their loss ; and to pay in the same manner the sum of two per centum per annum upon judgments which have been heretofore rendered by said court, to be computed, as provided in section five of this act, up to the time of payment ; and, to enable him to make such payments, the Secretary of State is directed to furnish a certified statement to the Secretary of the Treasury from the files and records of the court in his possession.

SEC. 6. Judgments rendered in the first class shall be first paid, and as soon as entered. Payments shall be made in the second class before judgments in the third class. If the sum of money so unappropriated shall be insufficient to pay the claims of the second class in full, they shall be paid according to the proportions which they severally bear to the whole amount of such unappropriated sum after the payment of judgments in the first class ; and the same rule shall be applied in the payment of judgments in the third class.

SEC. 7. No person shall be excluded from the provisions of this act by reason of his being born in any other country than one of the United States, if at the time he suffered the loss or damage provided for in this act he was residing in the United States and doing business therein, or was sailing under the protection of the flag of the United States.

SEC. 8. That all claims filed, or that may hereafter be filed, in said court in the name of one or more claimants, relating to a vessel in which other claimants are interested, shall be deemed and held to be legally filed the same as if all the parties in interest had joined in the filing of the petition.

SEC. 9. That this act shall not be construed as in any way renewing, extending, or continuing any of the commissions or appointments of judges or officers of the said Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims issued and made by virtue of said original act.

SEC. 10. That all moneys necessary for the payment of the salaries of the judges and officers authorized by this act, and for the lawful expenses of the said court hereby re-established, are hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated ; all of which shall be reimbursed out of the said unappropriated moneys before any of the judgments rendered under this act, except the first class, shall be paid. And after the reimbursement of all the expenses authorized by this act, and the payment of all the judgments rendered thereunder, if there shall remain any part of the said money, the same shall be and remain a fund from which Congress may hereafter authorize payment of other claims thereon.

And the question being put, viz:

Will the House agree to the said amendment?

And it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Hale moved to reconsider the vote last taken, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill, as amended, by the adoption of the said substitute be engrossed and read a third time.

Being engrossed, the bill, as amended, was accordingly read the third time.

The question then being on the passage of the bill,

When

Mr. McMahan demanded the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered;

And being put, viz:

Shall the bill pass?

It was decided in the affirmative,	{	Yeas .....	113

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

Mr. Stephens, by unanimous consent, from the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures, to which was referred the bills of the House (H. Whereas the said document is the property of an individual, and is liable to removal at any time: Therefore,

Mr. Gause moved to reconsider the vote last taken, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

The House then proceeded, under the previous order of the House, to the consideration of the following resolutions as modified by Mr. Potter, viz:

Whereas certain alleged telegrams in cipher have been published, indicating that attempts were made after the Presidential election of 1876 to influence by money or other fraudulent methods the vote of electors or the action of canvassing boards in the States of Florida, South Carolina, and Oregon: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee upon the Investigation of the Electoral Frauds, &c., be directed to inquire into the same (and into any other matter connected with the said election which in their judgment may be proper), and that they have power to send for persons and papers and to sit during the sessions of the House, with leave to report at any time. And that there be paid by the Clerk of the House, to the Sergeant-at-Arms, out of the contingent fund of the House, the sum of $10,000, for the purposes of the committee, to be expended under the direction of the chairman of the committee or of any subcommittee; and that the Sergeant-at-Arms make report to the House of the manner in which the same has been expended, which report, when examined and approved by the Committee of Accounts, shall be deemed a satisfactory accountability on his part of the same; and that any unexpended balance remaining in his hands be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the House;

When

Mr. Conger made the point of order that, as the said resolution made an appropriation of money, it must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the said resolution having been made a special order waived the rule requiring a bill or resolution to receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House, and also on the further ground that the resolution did, not make an appropriation of money, but directed its payment out of money already, or to be hereafter, appropriated;

And thereupon

Mr. Potter demanded the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered.

After debate,

The question being on agreeing to the said preamble and resolution:

Pending which,

Mr. Garfield moved to reconsider the vote by which the main question was ordered;

Pending which,

Mr. Atkins moved that the motion to reconsider do lie on the table:

Mr. Culberson, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 4054) for the relief of Frederick Carlisle, of Pontiac, Michigan, reported the same with an amendment, accompanied by a report in writing thereon.

The said bill and report were, on the point of order made by Mr. Harry White and sustained by the Chair, committed to the Committee of the Whole House and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Culberson, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported without amendment the bill of the Senate (S. 1038) for the relief of Jesse Turner and others, sureties upon the official bond of George W. Clarke, formerly Indian agent.

Mr. Whitthorne made the point of order that the bill must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House, on the ground that the bill made an appropriation of money.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Springer) overruled the point of order, on the ground that a bill releasing sureties upon an official bond of an officer of the government was not one making an appropriation of money, and therefore not subject to the point of order under Rule 110.

The House having proceeded to its consideration, the said bill was read the third time and passed.

Mr. Culberson moved to reconsider the vote last taken, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

Mr. Sparks, at 10 o'clock p. m., moved that the House adjourn;

Pending which,

Mr. Butler moved to reconsider the order by which the bill of the Senate (S. 36) to reorganize the judiciary of the District of Columbia, and to expedite the administration of justice in said District, was committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union; which motion was passed over for the present.

The question then recurring on the motion of Mr. Sparks;

When,

One-fifth of the members present voting in favor thereof, the yeas and nays were ordered thereon;

Pending which,

Mr. Burchard moved to reconsider the vote by which the yeas and nays were ordered; which motion was agreed to.

The question recurring on the demand for the yeas and nays, the same were refused, one-fifth of the members present not voting in favor thereof;

And then

Mr. Sparks withdrew the said motion to adjourn.

Mr. Culberson, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2493) for the better organization of the district court of the United States within the State of Louisiana, reported a substitute thereof; which said substitute (H. R. 6170), with the same title, was read twice.

The question being on the engrossment and third reading of the bill;

When

Mr. Culberson demanded the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered;

Pending which,

On motion of Mr. Sparks, at 10 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m., the House adjourned.

The Speaker sustained the point of order, and the said amendment was not received.

SEC. 32. That in order to bring about the reduction and reorganization provided for by this act, it is authorized and directed,

First. That a "Reserved List" be established, to which officers shall be transferred from the line and staff, when not otherwise disposed of, as hereinafter directed.

Second. That the chiefs of the several departments and bureaux of the staff, the commanders of the several geographical divisions and departments, of the Corps of Engineers, of the several regiments and military posts, and of detachments in the field, shall, as soon as practicable, and before the first day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, forward through, and for the remarks of, the Commanding General of the Army, to the Secretary of War, a list of the officers belonging to their respective departments, bureaux, or commands deemed by them unfit, from any cause, for the proper and efficient discharge of their duty. The cause of such unfitness shall be fully and specifically set forth, in each case, with a list of witnesses and reference to any documental evidence.

Third. That a board, to consist of not less than three of the highest general officers available for the purpose, and of two surgeons, which shall appoint a recorder, shall be appointed by the President, to examine into the qualifications and habits of every officer affected by the reports or records referred to in the clause of this section immediately preceding, and not disposed of by age under provisions for placing officers on the retired list. The members of the board and the recorder shall be sworn to a faithful discharge of their duties; and the board shall have power to compel the witnesses necessary in any case, whether they be civilian or military, to appear and testify.

Fourth. That the reports and records called for by the board from the Secretary of War, and such special reports in relation thereto as may be deemed necessary by the Secretary of War, shall be referred to the Board of Examiners aforesaid, for the investigation necessary in each case; and upon the recommendation of the Board, approved by the President, the officers reported as unfit, from any cause whatever, for the proper and efficient discharge of their military duties, shall, as soon as may be after the passage of this act, be either discharged from the service or placed under existing law upon the Retired List. If the disabilities be the result of intemperance or other vicious habits, the officer shall be discharged with a gratuity of one year's pay, if he shall have served at least three years; if it be neither the result of vicious habits nor of any incident of the service, he shall be discharged with a gratuity at the rate of one year's pay for each period of five years' service rendered, either as an officer or soldier in the regular or volunteer forces of the United States; but if the disability be the result of injuries received, or disease contracted in the line of his duty, the officer shall be placed upon the Retired List: Provided, That no officer shall thus be put on the Retired List or discharged until he has been allowed an opportunity to appear before the Board and show cause against such action.

Fifth. That the present Adjutant and Inspector Generals' Department shall be consolidated into the department to be known as the General Staff; that the present Cavalry force shall be consolidated into eight regiments, and the present Infantry force into eighteen regiments; and that the enlisted men of Ordnance, Artillery, Cavalry, and Infantry shall be so transferred as to establish as soon as may be the reorganization in view: Provided, That no non-commissioned officer or first-class private shall be forced to serve in a lower grade.

Sixth. That from the officers remaining upon the active list of the line and staff, after the process of elimination hereinbefore prescribed has been completed, and before the first day of January, eighteen hundred and eighty, the President, according to their seniority, shall, by retention in their present positions as far as possible, and by such transfers and promotions only as may be necessary, arrange the proper complement of officers to each of the departments and bureaux of the staff, and to the several corps and regiments of the line. Upon this arrangement being made, the supernumerary officers shall be transferred to the Reserved List: Provided, That this act in discontinuing certain grades and titles of office shall not thereby vacate the commissions of the present incumbents, but they shall be retained, transferred, promoted, or discharged, as other officers, according to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 33. That the "Reserved List" shall be maintained for three years, or until Congress shall otherwise direct: Provided, That no additions shall be made thereto after the reorganization of the Army has been accomplished; and that the officers upon this list shall, except as hereinafter provided, receive the pay and allowances of officers of like rank retired by reason of age or length of service, and no more. That the President, having due regard to seniority and fitness, shall transfer officers from the Reserved List to the various staff departments and corps of the line, as vacancies may occur therein: And provided further, That any officer of the Army may, within six months from the passing of this act, upon his own application, and at the discretion of the President, be transferred to the Reserved List.

SEC. 34. That the three instructors of field-music at David's Island, New York, be placed on the same footing as chief musicians of regiments.

SEC. 35. That every officer upon the Reserved List who may tender his resignation within six months after his transfer thereto, shall be entitled, upon the acceptance of such resignation, to receive three years' full pay of his rank, less the amounts previously paid to him as an officer on that list.

SEC. 36. That officers upon the Reserved List shall remain subject in all respects to the Rules and Articles of War, and when employed upon any duty that may be recognized by law, they shall receive the full pay and allowances of their rank.

SEC. 37. That the General Officers shall be selected from the Army; the Major-Generals from the Brigadier-Generals, and the Brigadier-Generals from the field-officers of the line.

SEC. 38. That the chiefs of the General Staff of the Staff Departments, and of the Corps of Engineers, shall be selected from the Army; the Chief of Engineers from the field-officers of that corps; the Surgeon-General from the officers of the Medical Department above the rank of assistant surgeon; the Chief of Ordnance from the field-officers of ordnance and artillery; and the chiefs of the other branches of the staff from the field-officers, either of the bureau or department in which the vacancy occurs, or of the line.

SEC. 39. That appointments into the lowest permanent grades in the several departments and bureaux of the staff shall, except in the Medical Department, be made by selection, upon competitive examination, from such officers as have served not less than three years in that branch of the staff in which the appointment is to be made.

SEC. 40. That promotion in the Regular Army from the lowest commissioned grade into that of colonel shall, except as hereinafter provided, be made by seniority throughout the several lines of engineers, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, and in each of the departments of the staff, and not regimentally, as heretofore. Graduated cadets of the same date shall take precedence in the order of rank established at the Military Academy.

SEC. 41. That details for duty in the General Staff, other than aids-de-camp, and in the several staff departments and bureaux, except as otherwise provided in this act, shall be made by the President by selections after consideration of the nominations that may be submitted by the Commanding General of the Army: Provided, That except in cases of emergency, no officer shall be thus detailed against his will, nor in any case until he has served at least six years with his regiment, and that no such details shall be for a longer period than three years, or, except at the Military Academy, for two successive terms, in the same department of the staff; and that as far as may be these details, except for ordnance duty, shall be equalized between the corps of artillery, cavalry, and infantry.

SEC. 42. That by transfers within each regiment a due proportion of officers shall be maintained with each of the manned battalions; and the President may from time to time make such temporary transfers to and from the cavalry as may be necessary to give that corps its proportion of the officers for staff duty, without impairing the efficiency of the cavalry service.

SEC. 43. That an officer detailed for duty in the staff shall not thereby forfeit either his lineal position, or right to promotion in the line; but when an officer is appointed into a permanent grade of the staff, he shall thereupon vacate his commission in the line. Those officers appointed to the additional offices provided for in a prior section of this act shall, upon discharge therefrom, be entitled to resume their relative positions in their proper corps, as though they had not been thus appointed.

SEC. 44. That general officers shall appoint their own secretaries and aids-de-camp; and the commanders of regiments, and of the Engineer battalion, shall appoint their several adjutants and quartermasters: Provided, That hereafter no one shall be appointed secretary or aid-de-camp until he has served six years with his regiment or corps, nor shall any one remain on such duty for a longer period than three years.

SEC. 45. That for the purpose of promoting knowledge of military art and science among the young men of the United States, the President may, upon the application of any established college or university within the United States, having capacity to educate not less than one hundred and fifty male students at the same time, detail an officer of the Army, to act as president, superintendent, or professor thereof; and the officers thus detailed shall be apportioned throughout the United States as nearly as may be according to population: Provided, That the number of officers to be thus detailed shall not exceed seventy-six from the Reserved and Retired Lists; and such retired officers while serving on these details shall receive twenty dollars a month extra pay.

SEC. 46. That the Secretary of War shall prescribe rules for the government of the officers detailed at the several colleges and universities aforesaid; he shall require those officers to state in their monthly reports the precise nature of their duties; and he shall cause inspections to be made from time to time in order to ascertain whether or not a proper course of military instruction is maintained at those institutions, and where such is not the case he shall withdraw the officer detailed.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Sympton, one of their clerks:

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed a bill of the House of the following title, viz:

H. R. 2423. An act to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States; with amendments, in which I am directed to ask the concurrence of the House of Representatives.

The President of the United States has notified the Senate that he did, on the 15th instant, approve and sign bills of the Senate of the following titles, viz:

S. 954. An act for the relief of Thomas A. Walker;

S. 763. An act to provide for holding term of the circuit and district courts in the district of Colorado; and

S. 1263. An act to provide for the adjustment and settlement of certain internal-revenue taxes erroneously assessed and collected from the Cumberland Valley Railroad Company.

Mr. Hale, under the call of States and Territories for resolutions, submitted the following preamble and resolution, and demanded the previous question thereon, viz:

Whereas a great number of claims for property alleged to have been used, consumed, damaged, or destroyed in the States which participated in the late rebellion in the years 1861, 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1865, by the armies of the United States, which were engaged in suppressing said rebellion, are now before this House and are persistently urged, both upon the floor and before the several committees of the House; and

Whereas legislation is constantly sought in the interest of such claims, by which all impediments to their passage may be removed and all distinction as to the loyalty of persons representing such claims may be abolished; and

Whereas, on the 12th day of November, 1877, a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting the payment of claims growing out of the late rebellion, was duly introduced by the Hon. M. C. Hunter, of Indiana, and properly referred, under the rules of the House, to the Judiciary Committee of this House, which said joint resolution provided as follows:

ARTICLE XVI.

No claim shall ever hereafter be allowed or paid by the United States, in the shape of damages or otherwise, for any kind of property, real or personal, used, consumed, injured, or destroyed by United States troops, or by or through any officers, civil or military, acting under or by authority of the United States, or from any other cause whatever, during the suppression of the late rebellion, in any of the States that were in rebellion against the Government of the United States, or for any property used, consumed, injured, or destroyed during such rebellion outside of said States that were in rebellion, and which belonged to persons residing within such States that were in rebellion, unless the persons owning the property so used, consumed, injured, or destroyed were, during all the time of such rebellion, loyal to the Government of the United States, and gave neither aid nor encouragement to the enemy. Nor shall any such claim be allowed or paid unless made by the person owning the property at the time it was so used, consumed, injured, or destroyed, or by his widow, child, or children; but in all cases the loyalty of the claimant or claimants shall be clearly shown;

And whereas said committee has neglected to act upon or report to the House upon said joint resolution; and

Whereas the provisions of the fourteenth article of the amendments to the Constitution, which prohibit payment for the loss of emancipated slaves or for debts and obligations incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, do not embrace the class of claims now being urged for payment:

Now, therefore, to the end that the presentation of such claims may be stopped, and the agitation thereon be put to rest, and that the Treasury of the United States may be protected from demands, which, if ever paid, will increase the burdens of the tax-payers to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars,

Be it resolved, That none of such claims for property alleged to have been used, consumed, damaged, or destroyed by the armies of the United States while engaged in the suppression of the rebellion in the States participating therein shall ever be paid unless it shall be affirmatively proved that the persons owning such property or prosecuting the claims for payment for the same were during all the time of said rebellion loyal to the Government of the United States; and the Committee on the Judiciary is hereby instructed to immediately report to this House for its action the joint resolution providing for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States as aforesaid;

Pending which,

Mr. Eden, at 11 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., moved that the House adjourn;

Mr. Randall (Mr. Carlisle in the chair as Speaker pro tempore), as a question of privilege, sent to the Clerk's desk the following extract from the Public Ledger of Philadelphia, viz:

[Correspondence of the Public Ledger.]

"NEW YORK, February 25.

"The Commercial Bulletin, in its Washington dispatches to-morrow, will publish an extraordinary statement (dated September 2, 1876) from Special Treasury Agent Williams, which, as it is likely to excite the attention of Congress, deserves notice as a matter of news. The substance of it is as follows:

"* * * The evidence is in the Treasury building to show that two appropriation warrants were illegal, signed to get money to continue operations of the Engraving and Printing Department, which was directly in the interest of Samuel J. Randall, who is a large stockholder in the paper-mill which is alone authorized to supply the Bureau of Engraving and Printing with paper for bonds, bank-notes, &c., and was accomplished through the influence of Randall, William Hemphill Jones, and George B. McCartee. I understand that Comptroller Robert W. Taylor signed the warrant through the influence and misrepresentations of Jones, and, it is said, Conant signed as Acting Secretary in Bristow's absence, and with a full knowledge of the illegality of them. Of this latter I am not prepared to say, but think it true; but that there was two such warrants issued, amounting, together, to about $270,000 ($263,000 is the real amount), there is no doubt, and the warrants can be produced.

"H. L. WILLIAMS,
"Special Agent.

"To Major WILLIAM B. MOORE,
"Supervising Special Agent, United States Treasury."

"Your correspondent invited the attention of Ex-Secretary Bristow (now in this city) to these extraordinary charges, and he had no hesitation in pronouncing them utterly without foundation, so far as his knowledge extends. 'No one who knows Mr. Randall,' he says, 'will for one moment believe what Williams says, and as to the other parties alluded to, they are men of tried integrity.' That Mr. Randall will at once take the proper notice of the statement Mr. Bristow has no doubt, seeing that Williams is still retained as an officer of the government in the Treasury Department."

The same having been read,

Mr. Randall submitted the following resolution: which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That a select committee of five members of this House be appointed by the present occupant of the chair, whose duty it shall be to make immediate inquiry into the statements made in the letter dated September 2, 1876, addressed to William B. Moore, supervising special agent of the United States, and signed by H. L. Williams, special agent, which said letter has been heretofore read to this House, and which contains a statement as to alleged fraudulent appropriation warrants said to have been issued at the instance of a member of this House in favor of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; that said committee have Schumann, civil engineer, Treasury Department; and Professor John S. Billings, surgeon United States Army, be, and they are hereby, constituted an advisory board, without additional pay or compensation, with power and authority to make and carry out, through the Architect of the Capitol Extension, during the approaching recess of Congress, all the changes and alterations in the heating, lighting, and ventilating the Hall of the House of Representatives that are set out and recommended in the report submitted by them and adopted by the select committee appointed by resolution of the House to inquire into the present method of heating, lighting, and ventilating the Hall of the House of Representatives; and the said board may employ a clerk during the time they are engaged in the performance of such work: Provided, That nothing herein shall authorize the removal of the desks as now placed.

Be it further resolved, That the Architect of the Capitol Extension and the Electrician of the House be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to purchase two dynamo-electric machines and their necessary attachments for lighting the Hall of the House of Representatives, providing they shall not cost a sum exceeding $2,500.

The Sergeant-at-Arms, to whom was directed the Speaker's warrant, under the resolution of the 27th instant, appeared at the bar of the House, having in custody, as therein commanded, the body of George F. Seward;

Whereupon,

The said Seward was arraigned, and the following interrogatory propounded to him by the Speaker:

Mr. Seward, you are presented at the bar of the House, upon the order of the House, under arrest on an alleged breach of the privileges of the House, in refusing to answer certain questions propounded to you by a committee of the House, which questions that committee was authorized by the House to ask, and for standing mute when tendered an oath as a witness, and for failing to produce certain books as required by a subpœna duces tecum duly served on you. It is my duty now, by authority of the House, to ask whether you are ready to take the oath tendered to you by the chairman of the committee, to answer the questions propounded to you by the committee, and to produce the books as required by the subpœna duces tecum served on you;

When

The said Seward replied as follows, viz:

The answer of George F. Seward to the order of this honorable House requiring him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt, respectfully submits:

The alleged contempt of the House consists, as he understands, in his failing to comply with the requirements of a subpœna duces tecum, purporting to command him to produce certain books before the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department and to testify before that committee.

The respondent is now minister of the United States to China, having formerly held the office of consul-general at Shanghai.

On the 23d of January, 1878, he was charged, in a communication addressed to the honorable Speaker, by one John C. Myers, with the commission of various acts of the character of high crimes and misdemeanors during the time he occupied the office of consul-general at Shanghai. On the 5th of February, 1878, this honorable body referred that communication to the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department for an investigation of the charges therein contained.

On that day the chairman of the committee addressed a letter to the President inclosing the communication of John C. Myers, together with other accusations against the respondent, and stating that the papers embodied charges affecting the official conduct of the respondent; that under the resolution of the House it was made the duty of the committee to institute an investigation into the truth of those charges; and that, before instituting such investigation, the committee desired that he be informed that an opportunity would be afforded him to appear before the committee in person or by counsel if he desired.

The record of the committee shows that it convened for the investigation of the charges preferred against the respondent on the 26th of February, 1878, when the parties appeared by their respective counsel, Mr. M. H. Carpenter appearing on behalf of John C. Myers and Messrs. R. T. Merriek and J. Hubley Ashton on behalf of the respondent; and it was then directed by the committee that the counsel of the prosecutor should formulate the charges contained in his communication to the Speaker, and any others he might have to make against the respondent. The record further shows that the prosecutor did so formulate his charges, numbering the allegations or specifications from one to thirteen, inclusive, and presented the same to the committee on the 27th of February, 1878.

The case was thereupon proceeded with before the committee, and during its entire progress, from that time to the present, it has been conducted according to the forms, methods, and procedure of criminal investigation, with the view and purpose of determining whether the respondent should be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors. Before the evidence for the prosecution closed, the counsel of John C. Myers applied to the committee for a subpœna duces tecum, requiring the respondent to produce certain books described in an affidavit of the said Myers, presented to the committee as laying the foundation for the application, and in which it was alleged that the said books would show that the respondent had been guilty of various acts of crime and malversation in office while consul-general at Shanghai.

The committee thereupon issued a subpœna duces tecum, purporting to command the respondent to produce the books mentioned in the affidavit of John C. Myers, and to testify before the committee. The respondent, through his counsel before the honorable committee, respectfully insisted that inasmuch as the object of such subpœna was to compel him to be a witness against himself upon the charges under investigation by the committee, it was inoperative and void under the provisions of the fifth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and that he ought not to be compelled, and could not lawfully be compelled, to obey its mandate.

Since the subpœna was served upon him, the committee has heard arguments by the counsel of the respective parties upon the question whether articles of impeachment should be presented by this honorable House against the respondent, under the evidence before the committee, and the committee are now deliberating upon that question.

The respondent is advised by his counsel, and respectfully submits, that he is protected by one of the sacred guarantees of individual right and personal liberty contained in the fifth article of the amendments of the Constitution of the United States from being compelled to comply with the supposed requirement of the subpœna which has been issued and served upon him in this case; and he respectfully claims the protection of that guarantee before this honorable body, for whose just authority he entertains the most sincere respect, and by whom his just rights as a citizen and officer of the United States will not be willfully or willingly infringed.

The fifth amendment of the Constitution of the United States declares that—

“No person * * * shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.”

This declaration embodies and expresses a fundamental maxim of the enlightened jurisprudence of England and America—Nemo tenetur se ipsum accusare; and incorporated as it is in the national bill of rights, was intended to bind and control all tribunals and all departments of the Government of the United States.

The maxim declares that investigations, whether by judicial tribunals or legislative bodies, into cases of alleged crime shall not be inquisitorial in their character, by compelling parties charged with offenses against law to give evidence against themselves.

The most enlightened jurists of modern times agree that it is a peculiar excellence of the common law of England and America that the accused in any criminal inquiry shall never be compelled to be a witness against himself.

Judge Cooley, in his work on Constitutional Limitations, has declared that a legislative body has no more right than a court to make its examination of parties or witnesses inquisitorial. (Constitutional Limitations, 3d ed., p. 313.)

The learned jurist cites as authority for this principle the judgment of the supreme court of Massachusetts in the celebrated case of Ex parte Emery, which involved the inquiry whether a like guarantee of the bill of rights of the State of Massachusetts applied to investigations before a legislative body (107 Mass.). The argument by the attorney-general in that case proceeded upon the ground that the provision of the declaration of rights was designed simply to embody the common-law rule and not to affect the parliamentary law.

A legislative investigation, it was said, was not for the purpose of punishing any specific crime, but of purifying the public service. In such an investigation there is reason for dispensing with the rules applicable to the ordinary prosecutions for crimes. The constitutional provision had no reference to such a rare and extraordinary occasion. This is shown, it was said, by various considerations. All the other provisions of this article in the declaration of rights relate only to ordinary prosecutions. The marginal clause is simply “prosecutions regulated.” No speech, debate, letter, or conversation of any of the framers of the constitution is known which shows an intention to change the existing rule of parliamentary law. The rule requiring witnesses to testify before Parliament, even though it might criminate them, had existed in England side by side with the rule of the common law. It might well, it was argued by Attorney-General Allen, stand here side by side with the constitutional provision, which had reference only to prosecutions in the courts of law.

This argument was met and successfully answered by Mr. Justice Wells, of the supreme court, declaring the unanimous judgment of that great tribunal, and the respondent would respectfully ask the attention of this honorable body to the following passages from the opinion of the court in that case. The court said:

“The question then comes, ‘Do these provisions apply to investigations before a legislative body?’ No one will contend, of course, that the legislature is not limited in its power by the provisions of the constitution equally with all other departments of the government and the whole body of the commonwealth, whether undertaken to be exercised in the ordinary form of laws enacted, or by those orders and requirements which are incidental to its functions and are adopted as means of their performance. There is nothing in the terms of the article in question to except legislative bodies from its operation. The nature and purpose of the provisions are equally applicable to investigations conducted by the legislature itself, or by one of its branches, or by a committee of its own members, as when conducted before the courts or by commissioners or other tribunals established by law. Such tribunals can in no case disregard this rule of protection. The legislature cannot by the most formal and solemn enactments of law authorize them to do it. If, then, the legislature cannot by the formal enactment of all its branches subject a citizen to such compulsory disclosure, it is difficult to see on what ground of argument or inference from necessity, propriety, or the nature of constitutional republican government, an authority can be deduced for either branch of the legislature to do so by its mere order.

"The protection of the subject is not secured by the constitution if it may be so invaded. The range of investigation which is open to inquiry by the legislature is limited. It is the general court of the commonwealth, entitled to inquire into the condition and efficiency and mode of operation of all administrative departments of the government of the State, the proper execution of the laws, and all that concerns the public welfare. If other means of discovering offenses and convicting offenders are thought to be inefficient or unsatisfactory, investigations by direct authority of the legislature, prompted by public complaints and intended primarily to furnish information upon which that body may act in remedying abuses in the administration of public affairs, may easily be perverted into an effective means of procuring material to aid in the institution and maintenance of criminal prosecutions. Committees of the legislature or commissioners acting under its order to inquire into any supposed failure to enforce the laws, if freed from the restrictions of the constitution in this particular, may be found useful and efficient as auxiliaries of the grand juries of the commonwealth. In this way parties exposed to prosecutions would find their constitutional protection to have failed them. It is the capability of abuse and not the probability of it which is to be regarded in judging of the reasons which lie at the foundation and guide in the interpretation of such constitutional restrictions.

"It is argued by the attorney-general that the article in question is merely the adoption of a rule which prevailed at the common law; that, along with that rule, there always existed in the Parliament of England a practice to disregard it in investigations pertaining to the business of that body; and that the rule of legislative investigation remains unaffected by the constitutional article. But the rule of the common law did not control parliamentary inquiries, for the simple and obvious reason that the authority of Parliament was more potent than the common law, and might change, annul, or suspend its restrictions, as that body should determine. The example is not confined to investigations relating to the business of Parliament, but extends to all those in which it authorizes a disregard of the common-law rule, before whatever tribunal they are authorized to be conducted. It is because the constitution of Massachusetts is more potent and above, not only the common law, but the legislature also, controlling all tribunals and all departments of the government alike, as well as all inhabitants of the commonwealth, that this safeguard of individual rights cannot be suspended or invaded, either by general laws or the special order of the legislative body, or or any of its branches.

"It is to be observed that the provision relates to the privileges of the subject, and not to the authority of any tribunal or body before which inquisition may be made. It places a limit upon all inquiry to which he may be subjected, not by defining the extent of the authority by which it is made, but by surrounding him with a privilege of exemption, which cannot be set aside by any authority without his own consent. It excludes the legislature as well as the courts. It follows, also, that in its exercise it is regulated by the same rules in legislative investigations as in judicial or other inquiries."

What is the rule of interpretation that should be applied to the solemn guarantees contained in the amendments of the Constitution?

Shall it be narrow, limited, and technical, disappointing the just expectation and belief of the citizen, and leaving him to become the victim of arbitrary power, and justifying itself by sophistries; or shall it be large and broad and liberal according to the common understanding of men, reaching to substance, and illustrating the glory of personal liberty by a generous application of the great principles upon which our system of Constitutional freedom reposes?

These questions have been frequently considered and adjudged by courts of the highest authority.

In the case of The People against Hackley (24 New York Reports, p. 82), Justice Denio, in delivering the opinion of the court, says:

"Constitutional provisions devised against governmental oppression, and especially against such as may be exercised under pretense of judicial power, ought to be construed with the utmost liberality, and to be extended so as to accomplish the full object which the author apparently had in view, so far as it can be done consistently with any fair interpretation of the language employed."

Referring to the fourth, fifth, and sixth articles of amendment to the Constitution, the Supreme Court, in Milligan's case (4 Wall., p. 120), uses the following language:

"These securities for personal liberty thus embodied were such as wisdom and experience had demonstrated to be necessary for the protection of those accused of crime. And so strong was the sense of the country of their importance, and so jealous were the people that these rights, highly prized, might be denied them by implication, that when the original Constitution was proposed for adoption it encountered severe opposition; and but for the belief that it would be so amended as to embrace them, it would never have been ratified."

And in the case of Cummings against the State of Missouri (same volume) the court, dealing with this same class of Constitutional guarantees, says:

"The court deals with substance, not shadows. The inhibitions of the Constitution are leveled at the thing, not the name."

The rule of interpretation thus declared, the respondent is advised and submits, must be applied in the consideration of every question arising upon the construction of the declaration of the Constitution, upon which he relies before the House in the present case.

That the present is a criminal case within the just meaning of the Constitutional amendment, the respondent submits is manifest from the character and object of the proceedings before the House and the committee to which he has referred.

Those proceedings were instituted and have been conducted in the exercise and execution of the power of impeachment, vested by the Constitution in the House of Representatives, and for the purpose of ascertaining and determining whether the respondent has been guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors justifying his impeachment by this honorable body.

He respectfully submits that the rule laid down by the honorable gentlemen who concurred in the report of the minority of the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department states the true and just construction to be given to the Constitutional guarantee under consideration; and it is this: "That when distinct charges of the commissions of officers constituting high crimes and misdemeanors are preferred against a public officer, and such charges are before a committee for investigation with reference to the exercise of the power of impeachment conferred by the Constitution upon the House, and proceedings are conducted for the purpose of ascertaining his probable guilt or innocence of the offenses imputed to him, according to the forms of law, there is presented a 'criminal case,' which is subject to the prohibition in the fifth amendment of the Constitution, that 'no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.'"

The respondent respectfully submits, in regard to the nature and character of the books in question, that the following portions of the report of the minority of the honorable committee correctly represent the evidence before the committee, and accurately state the law applicable to the evidence upon that subject:

"The undersigned desire also to express their views in regard to the character of the books mentioned in the subpœna, under the evidence which has been presented to the committee.

"This question is to be considered in connection with the provisions of statutes and executive regulations which prescribe the number and kind of books which a consul is required to keep for the purpose of showing the monetary transactions at his consulate.

"The statutory provisions on this subject are found in the eighteenth and twenty-seventh sections of the act of August 18, 1856, entitled 'An act to regulate the diplomatic and consular systems of the United States.' (11 Statutes at Large, 52.)

"The executive regulations are contained in article twenty-five of Consular Regulations of 1874, entitled 'Record Books and Archives.' (Regulations, page 100.)

"ARTICLE XXV.

"RECORD BOOKS AND ARCHIVES.

"398. The following record-books are to be kept at all inland consulates of the United States:

"399. A dispatch-book, into which are to be copied all official communications written by the consular officer to the Department of State. Press copy-books are not to be considered as permanent records.

"400. A letter-book, into which are to be copied all other official communications written by the consular officer.

The consular officer will specify the name of the person for whom and the date when he shall verify any passport, certify any invoice, or perform any other official service, in the entry of the receipt of the fees therefor in such register; and also number each consular act so receipted for with the number of such receipt as shown by such register. The fee-book is to be ruled and kept in accordance with form No. 101 or 102.

“402. A passport-book, in which are to be registered all passports issued or visaed by the consular office (No. 132).

“403. An invoice-book, to be ruled and kept in accordance with form No. 133, and with the instructions prescribed in the article on verification of invoices.

“404. A miscellaneous-record book, for the entry of those official papers and records which cannot conveniently be classified and entered in the record-books above named.

“405. A register of official letters received at the consulate, which shall embrace the following information: Name of the writer, number and date of letter, when received, its import, and remarks thereon, as prescribed in form No. 118.

“406. A register of official letters sent from the consulate, stating the date and import of the letter, and the name of the person to whom sent, as prescribed in form No. 119.

“407. A register of landing or debenture certificates, stating the name of the consignee, the date of the certificate, the merchandise, the name of the vessel, the port of shipment, and the date of shipment (form 134). A similar form will answer for tobacco or snuff.

“408. In seaports the following additional books will be used: A record-book of commercial returns, to be kept in accordance with form No. 120, in which must be stated, in respect of vessels, the number, date of arrival, class, name, and tonnage of all American vessels, where belonging, whence from, whither bound, when and where built, master and owner's names; and in respect of cargoes, both inward and outward, under distinct heads, as nearly as possible, the description, quantity, and value of the same, and where produced or manufactured.

“409. A seamen's register, in which shall be recorded a detailed list of all seamen shipped, discharged, or deceased at the consulate or commercial agency, and the payments made on account of each, according to form No. 124.

“410. A relief-book, showing the number and names of all seamen relieved, from what vessel discharged, date and cause of discharge, and date of leaving the consulate; embracing also the several amounts disbursed on their account, as particularly described in form No. 94.

“411. A quarterly account-current book, in which shall be recorded the account-current furnished quarterly to the Fifth Auditor, as per form No. 100.

“412. A protest-book, for the entry of notes of marine protests, in accordance with form No. 37.

“413. A book for the entry of extended protests. (See form No. 38.)

“414. A daily journal is to be kept, as prescribed in form No. 135.”

“The evidence seems to indicate that Mr. Seward kept all the books above mentioned with the exception (for a period of time) of the book entitled “ship's daily journal,” and further that the books so required to be kept and so kept by him are in the possession of the government and a part of the archives of the consulate at Shanghai. (See the testimony of Mr. Lewis, page 577 printed evidence.)

“As to the book called ship's daily journal, and the statement that this book was not kept at Shanghai, attention is called to that part of Mr. Lewis's evidence which shows that all the entries of money transactions affecting the government which ought to be entered upon that book appear upon other books, and to the fact that Mr. Seward informed the government in 1864 that he could not comply with certain requirements of the regulations, for the reason that he had not sufficient clerical force, and tendered his resignation because of the want of means to obtain it.

"Besides the books thus authorized and required by law to be kept by Mr. Seward, it seems that he kept certain other books in which entries were made in reference to official business, and also in reference to his private and personal affairs. These books are not within the designation of 'public books,' but are to be denominated private books, as distinguished from public books, which constituted no part of the archives of the consulate under the statutes and regulations to which reference has been made.

"It cannot justly be said that the United States have a proprietary interest in the writings and entries contained in those books, while, so far as the entries relating to official matters are concerned, they were of assistance to Mr. Seward and his clerks in preparing the public accounts and returns; they were apparently devoted also to the credits given by the office to persons having business with it.

"The government thus received a certain benefit from the employment of the books in question; and whatever may be the state of the title to the books, considered as stationery, it would seem under the authorities that the contents of the books stand upon no different footing from the contents of any other books, papers, or documents in the possession of Mr. Seward.

"The law as to what are public books which an officer is required to turn over to his successor is declared in the decision of the supreme court of New York in 11 Wendell, 545, and the decision of the supreme court of Pennsylvania in 14 Sergeant & Rawle, 440. In the former case it was held that the docket of a justice of the peace was not a public book, but was a private book, because no law required it to be kept, while in the latter case the court held such a docket to be a public book, and should remain in the office, upon the express ground that justices of the peace were ordered by act of assembly to keep a docket.

"Whatever might be the value or effect of the contents of the books of account in question as evidence against Mr. Seward, it does not appear to the minority of the committee that there is anything in the legal character of the books themselves which would warrant the exercise of any power in respect to them not applicable to other private writings of Mr. Seward which were in the consulate at Shanghai while he was consul-general.

"It is impossible to perceive upon what grounds of justice or right Mr. Seward can be affected with a responsibility beyond that attaching to him under the laws, regulations, and instructions to which he was at the time subject, by reason of having kept a set of books not provided for or even authorized by the government. If new laws, regulations, or instructions are deemed necessary, it would be appropriate for the competent department of the government to make and issue them. The government has heretofore proceeded upon the theory that consular officers should be required to keep books of certain kinds specified in the regulations and intended to exhibit the condition of accounts as between the consuls and the government. It has nowhere prescribed that books necessary to keep the current credits given by consular officers to individuals, or by them to him, should be kept as public books, or that returns of such credits should be made.

"The statement in the report of the majority that the accounts for the interpreters', marshals', and clerks' salaries and for the expenses of the consular court appear only in the books in question, does not appear to be sustained by the evidence.

"All accounts rendered by Mr. Seward are now filed in the Treasury and State Departments, and are open for the investigation of the committee. The greater part of them, indeed, have been furnished to the committee, and are in the evidence. There was no instruction or regulation requiring the accounts named to be entered upon any book of record at the consulate. Nor does it appear to be a matter of special concern to the government in what form the data from which these accounts were made up were kept by the consul. No instructions apparently were issued to him in the matter. The reports of the auditing officers are directed to individual officers, and Mr. Seward's accounts with those connected with the office may be supposed to have related in whole or in part to particulars and details which were of concern to them and to him only.

"The statement again that the books in question were kept by clerks appointed by the government is not unqualifiedly sustained by the evidence. No clerk in Mr. Seward's office was paid by the government until 1866, when one of those employed and paid by Mr. Seward was commissioned and in part paid by the government ($1,000 out of a total salary of $2,500). In 1867 another clerk employed by Mr. Seward was commissioned and in part paid by the government, the rate of pay given by the Government and by Mr. Seward being the same as in the first instance."

In view of the facts thus presented, and the law applicable thereto, the respondent respectfully submits that he is not in contempt of the House. He therefore asks that he be discharged from his present arrest.

J. HUBLEY ASHTON.

So the rules were not suspended.

Mr. Casey Young moved that the rules be suspended so as to take from the Speaker's table for present consideration the bill of the Senate (S. 1784) to prevent the introduction of contagious or infectious diseases into the United States and to establish a bureau of public health; which motion was agreed to (two-thirds voting in favor thereof).

The House having proceeded to its consideration, and the question being on the third reading of the bill;

Pending which,

Mr. Casey Young submitted the following amendment in the nature of a substitute, viz:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following, viz:

That there shall be established in the Treasury Department a board of health, to consist of seven members, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, not more than one of whom shall be appointed from any one State, whose compensation, during the time when actually engaged in the performance of their duties under this act, shall be ten dollars per diem and reasonable expenses. The Surgeon-General of the Army and the Surgeon-General of the Navy shall be ex-officio additional members of said board, but without additional pay. Said board shall meet in Washington within thirty days after the passage of this act, and in Washington or elsewhere from time to time upon notice from the president of the board, who is to be chosen by the members thereof, or upon its own adjournments, and shall frame all rules and regulations authorized or required by this act, and shall make or cause to be made by members of their own body such special examinations and investigations at any place or places within the United States as they may order, to aid in the execution of this act and the promotion of its objects, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. All rules and regulations framed under this act by said board of health shall be uniform: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to supersede or interfere with any State or municipal quarantines or precautionary measures of the States or municipalities now in operation, or which may hereafter be inaugurated, to prevent the introduction or spread of infectious or epidemic diseases.

SEC. 2. The board of health shall be charged with the execution of all laws and orders, rules and regulations made in pursuance of law for the improvement of the sanitary condition of the District of Columbia. It shall also be charged with the duty of obtaining information of the sanitary condition of foreign ports and places from which contagious or infectious diseases are or may be imported into the United States; and to this end the consular officers of the United States at all ports and places, who may be required to do so, shall make to the board of health weekly reports of the sanitary condition of the ports and places at which they are respectively stationed, according to such form as may be prescribed. The board of health shall also obtain, through the medical officers of the Marine Hospital Service, collectors of customs, and such other sources as are accessible, including State and municipal health officers and authorities throughout the United States, weekly reports of the sanitary condition of the ports and places within the United States; and the board of health shall prepare and transmit to the medical officers of the Marine Hospital Service, to collectors of customs, and to State and municipal health officers and authorities, weekly abstracts of the consular sanitary reports and other pertinent information received by them; and said board of health shall also, as far as it may be able, by means of voluntary co-operation of State and municipal authorities, of public associations and private persons, procure information relating to the climatic and other conditions affecting the public health; and the board of health shall make an annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury of its operations for transmission to Congress, with such recommendations as they may deem important to the public interests.

SEC. 3. That it shall be unlawful for any vessel engaged in the transportation of goods or persons from any foreign port where any contagious or infectious disease exists, to and into the United States, to enter any port of the United States, except in accordance with the provisions of this act, and all rules and regulations made in pursuance and applicable thereto; and any such vessel which shall enter, or attempt to enter, a port of the United States in violation thereof shall forfeit to the United States a sum, to be awarded in the discretion of the court, not exceeding five thousand dollars, which shall be a lien upon said vessel, to be recovered by proceedings in admiralty in the proper district court of the United States.

SEC. 4. All such vessels shall be required to obtain from the consul, vice-consul, or other consular officer of the United States at the port of departure, a certificate in duplicate, setting forth that said vessel has in all respects complied with the rules and regulations in such cases prescribed, and herein authorized, for the disinfection of said vessel, its cargo, passengers, and crew; and said consular officer is required, before granting such certificate, to be satisfied that the matters and things therein stated are true, and for his services in that behalf shall be entitled to demand and receive such fees as shall by lawful regulations be allowed, to be accounted for as is required in other cases.

And all vessels sailing from the port of Havana, in the island of Cuba, and bound for any port in the United States, shall be required to obtain from the medical officer serving in the office of consul of the United States at the port, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for that purpose, and who shall receive a salary of three thousand five hundred dollars per annum, his certificate, setting forth that he has personally inspected said vessel, her cargo, crew, and passengers; that the rules and regulations prescribed by the board of health in respect thereto have been fully complied with; and that in his opinion the said vessel may be allowed to enter any port in the United States, and land its cargo and passengers, without danger to the health thereof on account of any contagious or infectious disease; and any vessel sailing from said port without such certificate of said medical officer entering any port of the United States shall forfeit to the United States the sum of five hundred dollars, which shall be a lien on the same, to be recovered by proceedings in admiralty in the proper district court of the United States. And any vessel sailing from any other infected port, and bound for any port in the United States, shall be required to obtain a like certificate from the consular officer of the United States at said port. And the Secretary of State is hereby directed to give information to the consular officers of the United States of the duties imposed upon them by this act.

SEC. 5. The board of health shall from time to time issue to the consular officers of the United States and to the medical officer serving at the port of Havana, and otherwise make publicly known in such manner as shall be therein prescribed, the rules and regulations framed by the said board of health and approved by the President, to be used and complied with by vessels in foreign ports for disinfecting such vessels, their cargo, passengers, and crew, before their departure for any port in the United States and in the course of the voyage; and also such other rules and regulations which shall be observed in the inspection of the same on the arrival thereof at any quarantine station at the port of destination, and for the disinfection and isolation of the same and the treatment of cargo and persons on board, so as to prevent the spread of cholera and yellow fever or other contagious and infectious diseases; and it shall not be lawful for any vessel to enter said port to discharge its cargo or land its passengers except upon a permit of the health officer at such quarantine station, certifying that said rules and regulations have in all respects been observed and complied with, as well on his part as on the part of the said vessel and its master, in respect to the same and to its cargo, passengers, and crew; and the master of every such vessel shall produce and deliver to the collector of customs of said port of entry, together with the other papers of the vessel, the said certificates required to be obtained at the port of departure, and the permit and certificate herein required to be obtained from the health officer at the port of entry. It shall be the duty of the medical officer of the Marine Hospital Service and of customs officers to aid in the enforcement of the rules and regulations authorized by this act, without additional compensation except for actual and necessary traveling expenses incurred in the performance of such duties.

SEC. 6. That rules and regulations framed and approved as hereinbefore authorized shall be promulgated so that when cholera, yellow fever, or other similar contagious or infectious disease shall be ascertained by the board of health to exist in any port or place within any one of the United States, in such form as threatens its spread, as to prevent, as far as practicable, the communication of the same to other ports and places within other States, by means of vessels and vehicles engaged in the transportation of goods or passengers between two or more States, whether by land or water; and when the executive of any State in which any infectious disease may exist, or whether they are likely to spread, shall inform the board of health that the State or municipal authorities are unable to control said disease, or prevent the spread of the same, then, in that case, the board of health shall select suitable localities for establishing quarantine stations on the rivers and other lines of inter-State commerce, and may enforce such rules and regulations relating thereto as may have been prescribed therefor.

SEC. 7. That it shall be the duty of the board of health, so far as they lawfully may in the execution of the powers conferred upon them by law, to correspond and co-operate with similar local officers, boards, and authorities acting under laws of the States in sanitary measures, to prevent the introduction and spread of contagious and infectious diseases from foreign countries into the United States, and from one State into any other State, by means of commercial intercourse, or upon and along the lines of inter-State trade and travel; and to that end it shall be lawful for said board of health to confer upon any such local officer or board within or near the locality where his or its authority is exercised, power also to enforce the provisions of this act, and any rules and regulations made in pursuance thereof.

SEC. 8. That the board of health, with the assistance of the Academy of Science, which is hereby requested and directed to co-operate with them for that purpose, shall report to Congress at its next session a plan for a national public health organization, which plan shall be prepared after consultation with the principal sanitary organizations and the sanitarians of the several States of the United States, special attention being given to the subject of quarantine, both maritime and inland, and especially as to regulations which should be established between State or local systems of quarantine and a national quarantine system ;

Pending which,

Mr. Casey Young submitted the following amendment to the said substitute, viz :

Add as sections 9 and 10 the following :

SEC. 9. That the Senate and House committees appointed to investigate and report upon the best means to prevent the introduction and spread of epidemic diseases into the United States are hereby continued, with power to sit in vacation and retain the services of three experts and such clerks and stenographers as may be necessary for the purpose of completing the investigation in reference to the introduction and spread of epidemic diseases in the United States ; one of said experts shall be learned in medical science, one a microscopist, and one a sanitary engineer ; and they shall visit the port of Havana, and there investigate the nature and history of yellow fever, and the conditions of its origin and spread at that place and vicinity ; and they shall visit such other points and make such further investigations and examinations as may be directed by the two said committees of Congress, receiving for such service the sum of ten dollars per day and actual necessary traveling expenses.

SEC. 10. That the President of the United States be requested to invite the concurrence and co-operation of the Spanish Government in the examination and experiments of this commission in furtherance of international commerce and the sanitary interests of mankind ; and the said committee shall make their report to the next session of Congress, recommending such additional legislation as they may deem necessary for the protection of the public health, and especially to prevent the introduction and spread of epidemic diseases ; and that the money heretofore appropriated to meet the expense of this inquiry remains available for this purpose, to be expended, one-half by the Sergeant at-Arms of the House and one-half by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, under direction of the respective committees of the House and Senate ;

So the House refused to consider the said report and resolutions at this time.

A message in writing was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Pruden, one of his secretaries; which was handed in at the Speaker's table.

Also, a message in writing, which was handed in at the Clerk's desk, informing the House that he did this day approve and sign a bill of the House of the following title, viz:

H. R. 4414. An act to amend the laws in relation to internal revenue.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Sympton, one of their clerks:

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed, without amendment, the bill of the House (H. R. 6523) providing for the engraving and printing of portraits to accompany memorial addresses on the late Representatives Leonard, Quinn, Welsh, Williams, Douglas, Hartridge, and Schleicher.

The question then being put on the motion of Mr. John T. Harris, the same was agreed to (two-thirds voting in favor thereof), and the House accordingly proceeded to dispose of business on the Speaker's table;

And thereupon

The Speaker laid before the House, as the first business in order on the Speaker's table, the following message from the President of the United States, viz:

To the House of Representatives:

After a very careful consideration of House bill 2423, entitled "An act to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States," I herewith return it to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, with my objections to its passage.

The bill, as it was sent to the Senate from the House of Representatives, was confined in its provisions to the object named in its title, which is that of "An act to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States." The only means adopted to secure the proposed object was the limitation on the number of Chinese passengers which might be brought to this country by any one vessel to fifteen; and as this number was not fixed in any proportion to the size or tonnage of the vessel, or by any consideration of the safety or accommodation of these passengers, the simple purpose and effect of the enactment were to repress this immigration to an extent falling but little short of its absolute exclusion.

The bill, as amended in the Senate, and now presented to me, includes an independent and additional provision which aims at, and in terms requires, the abrogation by this government of articles five and six of the treaty with China, commonly called the Burlingame treaty, through the action of the Executive enjoined by this provision of the act.

The Burlingame treaty, of which the ratifications were exchanged at Peking, November 23, 1869, recites, as the occasion and motive of its negotiation by the two governments, that "since the conclusion of the treaty between the United States of America and the Ta-Tsing Empire (China) of the 18th of June, 1858, circumstances have arisen showing the necessity of additional articles thereto," and proceeds to an agreement as to said additional articles. These negotiations, therefore, ending by the signature of the additional articles July 28, 1868, had for their object the completion of our treaty rights and obligations toward the Government of China by the incorporation of these new articles as thenceforth parts of the principal treaty to which they are made supplemental. Upon the settled rules of interpretation applicable to such supplemental negotiations, the text of the principal treaty and of these "additional articles thereto" constitute one treaty, from the conclusion of the new negotiations, in all parts of equal and concurrent force and obligation between the two governments, and to all intents and purposes as if embraced in one instrument.

The principal treaty, of which the ratifications were exchanged August 16, 1859, recites that "the United States of America and the Ta-Tsing Empire, desiring to maintain firm, lasting, and sincere friendship, have resolved to renew, in a manner clear and positive, by means of a treaty or general convention of peace, amity, and commerce, the rules which shall in future be mutually observed in the intercourse of their respective countries," and proceeds, in its thirty articles, to lay out a careful and comprehensive system for the commercial relations of our people with China. The main substance of all the provisions of this treaty is to define and secure the rights of our people in respect of access to, residence and protection in, and trade with, China. The actual provisions in our favor in these respects were framed to be, and have been found to be, adequate and appropriate to the interests of our commerce, and by the concluding article we receive the important guarantee "that should at any time the Ta-Tsing Empire grant to any nation, or the merchants or citizens of any nation, any right, privilege, or favor connected either with navigation, commerce, political, or other intercourse which is not conferred by this treaty, such right, privilege, and favor shall at once freely inure to the benefit of the United States, its public officers, merchants, and citizens." Against this body of stipulations in our favor, and this permanent engagement of equality in respect of all future concessions to foreign nations, the general promise of permanent peace and good offices on our part seems to be the only equivalent. For this the first article undertakes as follows: "There shall be, as there have always been, peace and friendship between the United States of America and the Ta-Tsing Empire, and between their people respectively. They shall not insult or oppress each other for any trifling cause, so as to produce an estrangement between them; and if any other nation should act unjustly or oppressively, the United States will exert their good offices, on being informed of the case, to bring about an amicable arrangement of the question, thus showing their friendly feelings."

At the date of the negotiation of this treaty our Pacific possessions had attracted a considerable Chinese emigration, and the advantages and the inconveniences felt or feared therefrom had become more or less manifest, but they dictated no stipulations on the subject to be incorporated in the treaty. The year 1868 was marked by the striking event of a spontaneous embassy from the Chinese Empire, headed by an American citizen, Anson Burlingame, who had relinquished his diplomatic representation of his own country in China to assume that of the Chinese Empire to the United States and the European nations. By this time the facts of the Chinese immigration, and its nature and influences, present and prospective, had become more noticeable and were more observed by the population immediately affected and by this government. The principal feature of the Burlingame treaty was its attention to and its treatment of the Chinese immigration and the Chinese as forming, or as they should form, a part of our population. Up to this time our uncovenanted hospitality to emigration, our fearless liberality of citizenship, our equal and comprehensive justice to all inhabitants, whether they abjured their foreign nationality or not, our civil freedom, and our religious toleration, had made all comers welcome, and under these protections the Chinese, in considerable numbers, had made their lodgment upon our soil.

The Burlingame treaty undertakes to deal with this situation, and its fifth and sixth articles embrace its most important provisions in this regard, and the main stipulations in which the Chinese Government has secured an obligatory protection of its subjects within our territory. They read as follows:

"ARTICLE V.

"The United States of America and the Emperor of China cordially recognize the inherent and inalienable right of man to change his home and allegiance, and also the mutual advantage of the free migration and emigration of their citizens and subjects respectively from the one country to the other for purpose of curiosity, of trade, or as permanent residents. The high contracting parties therefore join in reprobating any other than an entirely voluntary emigration for these purposes. They consequently agree to pass laws making it a penal offense for a citizen of the United States or Chinese subjects to take Chinese subjects either to the United States or to any other foreign country, or for a Chinese subject or citizen of the United States to take citizens of the United States to China or to any other foreign country, without their free and voluntary consent, respectively.

"ARTICLE VI.

"Citizens of the United States visiting or residing in China shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities, or exemptions, in respect to travel or residence, as may there be enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nation; and, reciprocally, Chinese subjects visiting or residing in the United States shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities, and exemptions, in respect to travel or residence, as may there be enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nation. But nothing herein contained shall be held to confer naturalization upon citizens of the United States in China, nor upon the subjects of China in the United States."

An examination of these two articles, in the light of the experience then influential in suggesting their "necessity," will show that the fifth article was framed in hostility to what seemed the principal mischief to be guarded against, to wit, the introduction of Chinese laborers by methods which should have the character of a forced and servile importation, and not of a voluntary emigration of freemen seeking our shores upon motives and in a manner consonant with the system of our institutions and approved by the experience of the nation. Unquestionably the adhesion of the Government of China to these liberal principles of freedom in emigration, with which we were so familiar and with which we were so well satisfied, was a great advance toward opening that empire to our civilization and religion, and gave promise in the future of greater and greater practical results in the diffusion, throughout that great population, of our arts and industries, our manufactures, our material improvements, and the sentiments of government and religion which seem to us so important to the welfare of mankind. The first clause of this article secures this acceptance by China of the American doctrines of free migration to and fro among the peoples and races of the earth.

The second clause, however, in its reprobation of "any other than an entirely voluntary emigration" by both the high contracting parties, and in the reciprocal obligations whereby we secured the solemn and unqualified engagement on the part of the Government of China "to pass laws making it a penal offense for a citizen of the United States or Chinese subjects to take Chinese subjects either to the United States or to any other foreign country without their free and voluntary consent," constitutes the great force and value of this article. Its importance, both in principle and in its practical service toward our protection against servile importation in the guise of immigration, cannot be overestimated. It commits the Chinese Government to active and efficient measures to suppress this iniquitous system where those measures are most necessary and can be most effectual. It gives to this government the footing of a treaty right to such measures, and the means and opportunity of insisting upon their adoption, and of complaint and resentment at their neglect. The fifth article, therefore, if it fall short of what the pressure of the later experience of our Pacific States may urge upon the attention of this government, as essential to the public welfare, seems to be in the right direction and to contain important advantages, which once relinquished cannot be easily recovered.

The second topic which interested the two governments, under the actual condition of things which prompted the Burlingame treaty, was adequate protection, under the solemn and definite guarantees of a treaty, of the Chinese already in this country and those who should seek our shores. This was the object, and forms the subject of the sixth article, by whose reciprocal engagement the citizens and subjects of the two governments, respectively, visiting or residing in the country of the other are secured the same privileges, immunities, or exemptions there enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nations. The treaty of 1858, to which these articles are made supplemental, provides for a great amount of privilege and protection, both of person and property, to American citizens in China, but it is upon this sixth article that the main body of the treaty rights and securities of the Chinese already in this country depends. Its abrogation, were the rest of the treaty left in force, would leave them to such treatment as we should voluntarily accord them by our laws and customs. Any treaty obligation would be wanting to restrain our liberty of action toward them, or to measure or sustain the right of the Chinese Government to complaint or redress in their behalf.

The lapse of ten years since the negotiation of the Burlingame treaty has exhibited to the notice of the Chinese Government, as well as to our own people, the working of this experiment of immigration, in great numbers, of Chinese laborers to this country, and their maintenance here of all the traits of race, religion, manners, and customs, habitations, mode of life, segregation here, and the keeping up of the ties of their original home, which stamp them as strangers and sojourners, and not as incorporated elements of our national life and growth. This experience may naturally suggest the reconsideration of the subject, as dealt with by the Burlingame treaty, and may properly become the occasion of more direct and circumspect recognition, in renewed negotiations, of the difficulties surrounding this political and social problem. It may well be that, to the apprehension of the Chinese Government, no less than our own, the simple provisions of the Burlingame treaty may need to be replaced by more careful methods, securing the Chinese and ourselves against a larger and more rapid infusion of this foreign race than our system of industry and society can take up and assimilate with ease and safety. This ancient government, ruling a polite and sensitive people, distinguished by a high sense of national pride, may properly desire an adjustment of their relations with us which would in all things confirm, and in no degree endanger, the permanent peace and amity and the growing commerce and prosperity which it has been the object and the effect of our existing treaties to cherish and perpetuate.

I regard the very grave discontents of the people of the Pacific States with the present working of the Chinese immigration, and their still graver apprehensions therefrom in the future, as deserving the most serious attention of the people of the whole country and a solicitous interest on the part of Congress and the Executive. If this were not my own judgment, the passage of this bill by both Houses of Congress would impress upon me the seriousness of the situation, when a majority of the representatives of the people of the whole country had thought it to justify so serious a measure of relief.

The authority of Congress to terminate a treaty with a foreign power, by expressing the will of the nation no longer to adhere to it, is as free from controversy under our Constitution as is the further proposition that the power of making new treaties or modifying existing treaties is not lodged by the Constitution in Congress, but in the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, as shown by the concurrence of two-thirds of that body. A denunciation of a treaty by any government is, confessedly, justifiable only upon some reason both of the highest justice and of the highest necessity. The action of Congress in the matter of the French treaties, in 1798, if it be regarded as an abrogation by this nation of a subsisting treaty, strongly illustrates the character and degree of justification which was then thought suitable to such a proceeding. The preamble of the act recites that, "the treaties concluded between the United States and France have been repeatedly violated on the part of the French Government; and the just claims of the United States for reparation of the injuries so committed have been refused, and their attempts to negotiate an amicable adjustment of all complaints between the two nations have been repelled with indignity," and that, "under authority of the French Government there is yet pursued against the United States a system of predatory violence, infracting the said treaties, and hostile to the rights of a free and independent nation."

The enactment, as a logical consequence of these recited facts, declares, "That the United States are of right freed and exonerated from the stipulations of the treaties and of the consular convention heretofore concluded between the United States and France; and that the same shall not henceforth be regarded as legally obligatory on the Government or citizens of the United States."

The history of the government shows no other instance of an abrogation of a treaty by Congress.

Instances have sometimes occurred where the ordinary legislation of Congress has, by its conflict with some treaty obligation of the government toward a foreign power, taken effect as an infracture of the treaty, and been judicially declared to be operative to that result. But neither such legislation nor such judicial sanction of the same has been regarded as an abrogation, even for the moment, of the treaty. On the contrary, the treaty, in such case, still subsists between the governments, and the casual infracture is repaired by appropriate satisfaction in maintenance of the treaty.

The bill before me does not enjoin upon the President the abrogation of the entire Burlingame treaty, much less of the principal treaty of which it is made the supplement. As the power of modifying an existing treaty, whether by adding or striking out provisions, is a part of the treaty-making power under the Constitution, its exercise is not competent for Congress, nor would the assent of China to this partial abrogation of the treaty make the action of Congress, in thus procuring an amendment of a treaty, a competent exercise of authority under the Constitution. The importance, however, of this special consideration seems superseded by the principle that a denunciation of a part of a treaty, not made by the terms of the treaty itself separable from the rest, is a denunciation of the whole treaty. As the other high contracting party has entered into no treaty obligations except such as include the part denounced, the denunciation by one party of the part, necessarily liberates the other party from the whole treaty.

I am convinced that, whatever urgency might, in any quarter or by any interest, be supposed to require an instant suppression of further immigration from China, no reasons can require the immediate withdrawal of our treaty protection of the Chinese already in this country, and no circumstances can tolerate an exposure of our citizens in China, merchants or missionaries, to the consequences of so sudden an abrogation of their treaty protections. Fortunately, however, the actual recession in the flow of the emigration from China to the Pacific coast, shown by trustworthy statistics, relieves us from any apprehension that the treatment of the subject in the proper course of diplomatic negotiations will introduce any new features of discontent or disturbance among the communities directly affected. Were such delay fraught with more inconveniences than have ever been suggested by the interests most earnest in promoting this legislation, I cannot but regard the summary disturbance of our existing treaties with China as greatly more inconvenient to much wider and more permanent interests of the country.

I have no occasion to insist upon the more general considerations of interest and duty which sacredly guard the faith of the nation in whatever form of obligation it may have been given. These sentiments animate the deliberations of Congress and pervade the minds of our whole people. Our history gives little occasion for any reproach in this regard; and in asking the renewed attention of Congress to this bill I am persuaded that their action will maintain the public duty and the public honor.

R. B. HAYES.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, March 1, 1879.

The same having been read,
The bill was thereupon read, as follows, viz :

AN ACT to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That no master of any vessel owned in whole or in part by a citizen of the United States, or by a citizen of any foreign country, shall take on board such vessel, at any port or place within the Chinese Empire, or at any other foreign port or place whatever, any number exceeding fifteen Chinese passengers, whether male or female, with the intent to bring such passengers to the United States, and leave such port or place and bring such passengers to any number exceeding fifteen on one voyage within the jurisdiction of the United States: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any master of a vessel seeking a harbor in stress of weather.

SEC. 2. That whenever the master or other person in charge of any such vessel takes on board the same, at any foreign port or place, any greater number of Chinese passengers than is prescribed in the first section of this act, with intent to bring such passengers to the United States, and leave such port or place and brings such passengers to any number exceeding fifteen on one voyage within the jurisdiction of the United States, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, for each passenger so taken on board and brought within the jurisdiction of the United States exceeding the number of fifteen, be fined one hundred dollars, and may also be imprisoned for not exceeding six months.

SEC. 3. That the master of any vessel arriving in the United States, or any of the Territories thereof, from any foreign place whatever, at the same time that he delivers a manifest of the cargo, and if there be no cargo, then at the time of making report or entry of the vessel pursuant to law, shall, in addition to the other matters required to be reported by law, deliver and report to the collector of the district in which such vessel shall arrive a separate list of all Chinese passengers taken on board the vessel at any foreign port or place, and of all such passengers on board the vessel at that time; such list shall be sworn to by the master in the same manner as directed by law in relation to the manifest of the cargo, and the refusal or neglect of the master to comply with the provisions of this section shall receive the same penalties, disabilities, and forfeitures as are provided for a refusal or neglect to report and deliver a manifest of the cargo.

SEC. 4. That the amount of the several penalties imposed by the foregoing provisions shall be in liens on the vessels violating those provisions; and such vessels shall be libeled therefor in any circuit or district court of the United States where such vessel shall arrive.

SEC. 5. That nothing herein contained shall be held to repeal or modify any law forbidding the importation of coolies, or of females for immoral purposes, into the United States: Provided, That no consul or consular agent of the United States residing at any port from which any vessel taking Chinese passengers may take her departure shall grant the certificate provided for in section twenty-one hundred and sixty-two of the Revised Statutes for more than fifteen Chinese passengers on any one vessel.

SEC. 6. That this act shall not apply to persons officially connected with the Chinese Government, or any embassy thereof, or to persons rescued from shipwreck during the voyage of and by the vessel bringing the same within the jurisdiction of the United States, or to persons who may only seek a temporary residence for educational purposes, and who shall have a certificate from the Chinese Government for that purpose.

SEC. 7. That this act shall take effect from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine. And the President of the United States shall immediately, on the approval of this act, give notice to the Government of China of the abrogation of articles five and six of the additional articles to the treaty of June eighteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, between the United States and China, proclaimed February fifth, eighteen hundred and seventy, commonly called the Burlingame treaty.

SAM. J. RANDALL,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

W. A. WHEELER,

Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Sympson, one of their clerks:

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed, with amendments, bills of the House of the following titles, viz:

H. R. 6126. An act to establish post-routes in the several States herein named; and

H. R. 6462. An act making appropriations for the payment of the arrears of pensions granted by act of Congress approved January 25, 1879, and for other purposes; in which amendments I am directed to ask the concurrence of the House of Representatives.

The Senate insist on their amendments to the bill of the House (H. R. 6240) making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and for other purposes, disagreed to by the House of Representatives, agree to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and have appointed Mr. Windom, Mr. Allison, and Mr. Beck managers at the said conference on the part of the Senate.

The Senate have agreed to the amendments of the House to the bill of the Senate (S. 373) to amend an act to provide for the sale of a portion of the reservation of the Confederated Ottos and Missouria and the Sac and Fox of the Missouri tribes of Indians in the States of Kansas and Nebraska.

The Speaker, by unanimous consent, announced the appointment of Mr. Claffin, Mr. Blackburn, and Mr. Hunton managers at the conference heretofore ordered on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill of the House (H. R. 4579) concerning street railroads in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Rainey, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles, viz:

S. 1108. An act to transfer the title of the United States to square 109 to the District of Columbia for the benefit of the public schools thereof;

H. R. 1651. An act to validate and confirm certain acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments of writing under seal made in a foreign country for land lying in the District of Columbia, and the records thereof; and

H. R. 6523. An act providing for the engraving and printing of portraits to accompany memorial addresses on the late Representatives Leonard, Quinn, Welch, Williams, Douglas, Hartridge, and Schleicher.

Mr. Sampson, from the same committee, reported that the committee had examined and found truly enrolled a bill of the following title, viz:

H. R. 5271. An act for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of Richard Stevenson, late assistant quartermaster of volunteers, and his bondsmen;

When

The Speaker signed the same.

The regular order being demanded, the Speaker stated the same to be the report of the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department, proposing articles of impeachment against George F. Seward, late consul-general at Shanghai, China, and now minister plenipotentiary to China, pending when the House took its first recess on Saturday, the 1st instant, the pending question being the question of consideration raised by Mr. Garfield, on which the yeas and nays were then ordered,

When

Mr. Price proposed to submit the following resolution as a question of privilege, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee of Elections be discharged from the further consideration of the contested election case of Nutting against Reilly, and that the same be now taken up for action in the House.

The Speaker ruled the said resolution out of order at this time, for the reason that a question of high privilege was already pending involving the constitutional power of the House with reference to impeachment, on which question the yeas and nays had been ordered, thus precluding the presentation of another question of privilege until the pending question had been disposed of.

So the said resolution presented by Mr. Price was not received.

Mr. Conger made the point of order that, the House having referred the subject-matter of the investigation of charges against Mr. Seward to the Committee on the Judiciary, it was not in order for the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department to take further action in the said case.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the subject referred to the Committee on the Judiciary was the answer of the said Seward in response to the order of the House, requiring him to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of the House, and also on the further ground that the question of impeachment was one of constitutional privilege, which could be raised or presented at any time by any member of the House.

The question was again put, viz:

Will the House now consider the said report?

And it was decided in the affirmative, { Yeas ..... 132
 { Nays ..... 109
 { Not voting ..... 49

The yeas and nays being desired by one-fifth of the members present,

WM. A. J. SPARKS,

Managers on the part of the House.

WM. WINDOM,
S. W. DORSEY,
W. A. WALLACE,

Managers on the part of the Senate.

Mr. Baker moved to reconsider the vote by which the said bill was passed, and moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk acquaint the Senate therewith.

The House thereupon resumed the consideration of the said report.

The same having been read, as follows, viz:

The Committee on Expenditures in the State Department would respectfully report that on the 26th day of February, 1878, they commenced the investigation of the matters referred to in the memorial of John C. Myers, consul-general at Shanghai, China, relating to the affairs of the consulate-general of the United States at Shanghai, China.

That they have taken testimony regarding the matters set forth in the said charges; and also during the said investigation have taken testimony touching other matters within the jurisdiction of your committee relating to the affairs of the consulate-general at Shanghai during the incumbency of that office by George F. Seward, late consul and consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, and now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China; and regarding certain matters within the jurisdiction of your committee touching the affairs of the said George F. Seward, minister to China, as aforesaid: that they return to the House of Representatives the testimony which they have taken in regard thereto, and recommend that the said George F. Seward be by the House of Representatives impeached at the bar of the Senate of high crimes and misdemeanors while in office upon the following articles, namely:

Articles exhibited by the House of Representatives of the United States of America, in the names of themselves and of all the people of the United States of America, against George F. Seward, late consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, and now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, in maintenance and support of their impeachment against him for high crimes and misdemeanors while in office.

ARTICLE I.

That the said George F. Seward, between the 1st day of January, A. D. 1864, and the 31st day of December, A. D. 1875, then holding and exercising the office of consul and consul-general at Shanghai, in the Empire of China, as aforesaid, was guilty of injustice, tyranny, extortion, and bribery in his official capacity as judge of the said consular court at Shanghai, China, upon and with citizens of the United States, in this, to wit:

First specification.—That the said George F. Seward, between the month of January, in the year 1874, and the month of December, in the year 1875, then being consul-general at Shanghai, China, as aforesaid, and as such judge of the consular court at Shanghai, China, aforesaid, acting judicially in a case then pending before him in said court regarding the settlement of the estate of one D. R. Spedding, formerly an American citizen doing business at Shanghai, China, then deceased, such court having probate jurisdiction of the aforesaid estate, charged one Eugene McLaughlin, executor of the will and administering upon the said estate, and demanded and received from him, the said Eugene McLaughlin, executor as aforesaid, the sum of 500 taels, equal in the money of the United States to the sum of $620.

That at the time of the charge by the said Seward against the said estate of the said D. R. Spedding, deceased, there was then pending before the said Seward as such judge the account of the said executor for allowance, which was finally allowed by the said Seward at the sum of 5 per cent. on the amount of said estate, when the amount which the said executor was entitled by law to have and receive would have been 1 per cent. only on the amount of said estate.

That the said charge was made by the said George F. Seward, and the said money was corruptly received by him while probate judge or judge of the consular court aforesaid, well knowing that the services rendered by him were a part of his judicial duties as such judge, and the said 500 taels were, in the final settlement and distribution of said estate, allowed by said Seward as said judge against said estate, and the said Seward retained said sum of money, and refused to pay the same to the distributees or owners of said estate, against the protest of T. F. Burr, who owned one-half of said estate.

Second specification.—That the said George F. Seward, between the month of January, in the year 1874, and the 31st day of December, in the year 1875, then being consul-general at Shanghai, China, as aforesaid, and as such judge of the consular court at Shanghai, China, as aforesaid, then and there acting judicially in the case then pending before him as such judge, in which said case one Benjamin Pease, an American citizen, had been charged before him, the said Seward, with the crimes of piracy and murder, and had been arrested and committed to jail therefor, caused the said Benjamin Pease to be brought before him while acting as judge aforesaid, and then and there, without examination or hearing, and without trial, lawfully discharged the said Benjamin Pease from custody and arrest, well knowing him to be guilty of the crimes charged against him, and then and there permitted the said Benjamin Pease to go at large, without examination, hearing, or trial for said offense, and without making any endeavors to obtain evidence against him.

Third specification.—That the said George F. Seward, between the month of January, in the year 1875, and the month of December, in the year 1875, then being consul-general at Shanghai, China, as aforesaid, and as such judge of the consular court at Shanghai, as aforesaid, certain alleged deserters from an American ship, who had been brought before said Oliver B. Bradford, then vice-consul-general as aforesaid, and he having, without authority of law and without hearing, committed the said alleged deserters for sixty days at hard labor on bread and water, one of said alleged deserters, desiring to remonstrate or protest against the said commitment and to make complaint of bad treatment on board of said ship, applied to the said George F. Seward for the purpose of obtaining a rehearing of the determination against him, the said George F. Seward did then and there command the marshal of said consular court to imprison him ninety days, instead of sixty days, as sentenced by said Bradford, without further trial or hearing or evidence, and the said alleged deserter from said ship was committed to jail at hard labor on bread and water, and imprisoned in the jail of said consulate at Shanghai for said term of ninety days, which said act by the said Seward was unjust, tyrannical, and an abuse of his judicial authority, and without authority of law.

Fourth specification.—That the said George F. Seward, while holding the said office of consul-general at Shanghai, China, and the said office of judge of the consular court at Shanghai, China, and acting judicially therein, permitted one George S. Porter to act as judge of the consular court in the trial of one Dominick Lynch, who had been committed for trial in the said consular court as an accessory after the fact to the crime of murder of one McKinnon by a man by the name of John Buckley, and to sit in the trial of said Lynch, to take the testimony on the said trial, to determine the said Lynch guilty of the offense charged against him, and to convict him of such offense, and to sentence him therefor to the jail of said consular court for sixty days for said offense, which said sentence and commitment were carried into effect, and the said Dominick Lynch served out his term of imprisonment in accordance with said sentence. That the said Porter had no right or authority to sit or act judicially on the trial of said case, which the said Seward then and there well know.

Fifth specification.—That the said George F. Seward, while holding the office of consul-general as aforesaid, and as such judge of the consular court at Shanghai, China, as aforesaid, between the month of January, in the year 1865, and the month of December, in the year 1865, at divers times permitted said Oliver B. Bradford, without authority of law, to sit in the trial of civil cases in the consular court at Shanghai, China, to take the testimony of witnesses therein, to hear and determine in regard thereto, and to render judgment therein, which said judgment so rendered by him was subsequently enforced by the order of said court, well knowing that the said Bradford had no authority or jurisdiction to try or determine said cause.

ARTICLE II.

That the said George F. Seward, on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1865, and at divers days and times from that date until the 31st day of December, A. D. 1875, having in his custody a large sum of money, to wit, the sum of $20,000, being the moneys of the United States, known as the seamen's relief fund, and being then and there the disbursing officer of the United States of such funds at said consulate-general, did then and there, without authority of law, convert the same to his own use, and did then and there loan the same with interest at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum, and did then and there loan said moneys to one Andrew Anderson and to the firm of Claff & Co., and to divers other persons unknown, taking from said persons mortgages to himself as security for such loans and appropriating the interest upon said loans to his own use, and thereby embezzled said funds. That said mortgages were thereafter foreclosed in the consular court, before himself acting as judge, in actions in which he was plaintiff and party in interest, and judgments and decrees of foreclosure perfected in said suits, on which decrees of foreclosure and rule the mortgaged property was sold and purchased by said Seward at such sales, and titles made and confirmed to him by order of himself, sitting as judge.

ARTICLE III.

That the said George F. Seward, late consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, and now envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, between the 1st day of January, in the year A. D. 1865, and the 31st day of December, in the year A. D. 1875, then being consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, became interested in the construction of a certain railroad from Woosung to Shanghai, within the Empire of China, and used his official influence to promote the construction thereof in violation of the treaties then and now existing between the United States and the Emperor of China, and in violation of the acts of Congress in that behalf, and contrary to the wishes of the people of China and regardless of the protest of the authorities of the Empire of China, and particularly of the authorities of the Empire of China within the district where the railroad was located.

ARTICLE IV.

That between the 1st day of January, in the year A. D. 1865, and the 31st day of December, A. D. 1875, one Oliver B. Bradford, being vice-consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, deputy consul-general of the United States, clerk of the consular court of the United States, and consular clerk of the United States, assigned to Shanghai, China, did, in connection with one A. A. Hayes and others, unlawfully form and enter into a scheme for the purpose of pecuniary profit, of constructing a railroad from Woosung to Shanghai, in the Empire of China, the construction of which road was contrary to the wishes of the people and authorities of the Empire of China, as the said Oliver B. Bradford and others then and there well knew. That for the purpose of deceiving the said people and authorities of China, the said Oliver B. Bradford and others fraudulently pretended that they were to build a common road or highway from said Woosung to said Shanghai, and so fraudulently pretending, purchased and secured the land necessary to be used for the construction of said railroad from Woosung to Shanghai. The said Oliver B. Bradford and others, the better to enable them to deceive the said people and authorities of China, organized themselves into a copartnership, which they called and designated the Woosung and Shanghai Road Company.

That the said George F. Seward, well knowing the premises and then holding the office of consul-general at said Shanghai, unlawfully intending to intervene in the domestic administration of China in regard to the construction of railroads in the Empire of China, and well knowing that His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China had not determined to construct or cause to be constructed railroads within said empire, and had not made application to the United States or any other western power to carry out such policy, and that the United States had not designated or authorized suitable engineers to be employed by the Chinese government in such improvements, unlawfully, in fraud of the rights of the Empire of China, and against the wishes of the people of China, and against the protests of said authorities of the Empire of China, did then and there aid, assist, and encourage the said Oliver B. Bradford and others in the construction of said railroad as aforesaid, and did aid, assist, and promote the said scheme of constructing said railroad as aforesaid by said false and fraudulent pretenses as aforesaid, in violation of the treaties then existing between the United States and the Empire of China, and against the acts of Congress in that behalf; and that the said George F. Seward did then and there use the influence of his said official position to accomplish, and to aid and assist in accomplishing, said fraudulent scheme by imposition as aforesaid upon the said authorities of the Empire of China.

ARTICLE V.

That in the month of April, in the year 1871, one Richard Phoenix was marshal of the United States for the consulate-general at Shanghai, China, and as such entitled to receive for his fees and services the salary and perquisites of said office as marshal; that the said George F. Seward, well knowing the premises, and wrongfully intending and contriving to defraud the Government of the United States, out of the moneys of the Government of the United States, took and received to his own use the fees which by law the said Phoenix, as marshal aforesaid, was entitled to receive, and converted the same to his own use, making no account to the government therefor, and rendering false and fraudulent vouchers to the government therefor.

ARTICLE VI.

That the said Richard Phoenix, in the month of April, in the year 1871, was marshal of the United States for the consulate-general at Shanghai, China; that the said George F. Seward, well knowing the premises, unlawfully entered into an agreement with the said Richard Phoenix, by which agreement the said George F. Seward was to pay to the said Richard Phoenix a certain fixed sum for his services and salary as marshal aforesaid, and he, the said Seward, to receive all of the fees of the office of said marshal of the United States at said consulate-general, and that under and by virtue of said agreement he did receive and convert to his own use all of the fees of the office of said marshal of the United States in the month of April, 1871, until the month of December, 1875, which said sums of money so received by him were largely in excess of the amount paid to said Phoenix by the said Seward, and for which the said Seward took vouchers from said Phoenix for an amount greater than that actually paid to him by said Seward, and returned the sums so paid to the Treasury Department, receiving credit therefor.

ARTICLE VII.

That the said George F. Seward, from January 1, A. D. 1862, to and including the 31st day of December, 1875, holding and exercising the duties of the office of consul and consul-general of the United States as aforesaid at Shanghai, China, and as such being a disbursing officer of the United States, charged with the receipts and disbursements of the moneys of the United States on account of expenses of the consular court and of the consulate and consulate-general at Shanghai, China, did defraud the United States in the manner, following, to wit: That all the moneys received by the said George F. Seward at said Shanghai as such officer on account of the United States were received in silver coin commonly known as Mexican dollars; that said silver coin at said Shanghai at and during the time aforesaid commanded a premium over American gold and over the currency of the United States; that the said George F. Seward, as such disbursing officer, uniformly paid out the same silver coin he had received, but that the said George F. Seward, then and there intending to defraud the United States, made out his quarterly statements of accounts of said receipts and disbursements showing that he had received the money in the currency of the United States, which had during that time depreciated below the value of the coin of the United States, and that he had therewith purchased gold and with said gold had purchased said silver coin, charging the difference upon both said premiums to the United States as disbursed by him, whereas, in truth and in fact, the said George F. Seward never did purchase any gold and never did receive any currency as such officer on account of the United States; the receipts of said consulate for moneys received exceeding in all instances the amounts disbursed by him.

ARTICLE VIII.

That the said George F. Seward from the 1st day of January, A. D. 1862, to and including the 31st day of December, A. D. 1865, holding during said time the office of consul and the office of consul-general of the United States at said Shanghai, and as such being a disbursing officer of the United States, and by virtue of his office as such consul and consul-general, being required by law to make return quarterly to the Government of the United States of the moneys received at the post-office, or postal agency, at said Shanghai, China, did defraud the United States in the manner following, to wit: That all the moneys received by the said George F. Seward as such postal agent at said Shanghai on account of the United States were received in silver coin, commonly known as Mexican dollars; that said silver coin at said Shanghai, at and during said time, commanded a premium over American gold, and over the currency of the United States; that the said George F. Seward as such disbursing officer uniformly paid out the same silver coin he had received, but that the said George F. Seward then and there, intending to defraud the United States, made out his quarterly statements of account of said receipts and disbursements, showing that he had received the moneys in the currency of the United States, which during said time was depreciated below the value of the coin of the United States and of said Mexican dollars, and had therewith purchased gold, and with said gold had purchased said silver coin, charging the difference upon both said premiums to the United States as disbursed by him, whereas, in truth and in fact, the said George F. Seward never did purchase any gold, or never did receive any currency as such officer on account of the United States, the receipts of said office exceeding in all instances the amounts disbursed by him.

ARTICLE IX.

That the said George F. Seward, between the 1st day of January, in the year 1876, and the 31st day of December, in said year, then being envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China as aforesaid, unlawfully took and received the salary of the consul-general at Shanghai, China, for the quarter beginning on the 1st day of January, 1876, and ending on the 31st day of March, 1876, and forwarded or caused to be forwarded to the Treasury of the United States a voucher in the name of O. B. Bradford, acting as consul-general during said time, and appropriated the amount called for by said voucher to his own use, not having performed any of the duties of consul-general at said Shanghai during said time.

ARTICLE X.

That the said George F. Seward, between the 1st day of January, in the year 1876, and the 31st day of December, in the year 1876, then being envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, unlawfully took and received from the Government of the United States the salary for both the offices of consul-general at Shanghai, China, and the office of minister at Peking, China, for and during the first quarter of the year 1876, which said salary so received by him as minister aforesaid amounted to the sum of $2,637.36, and the salary so received by him for the office of consul-general amounted to the sum of $1,249.98, which said sum of money so received by him for the salary of said consul-general for said quarter was unlawfully received by the said George F. Seward, as he then and there well knew, and which sum of money the said George F. Seward wrongfully converted to his own use.

ARTICLE XI.

That the said George F. Seward, on the 27th day of March, in the year 1877, then being envoy and minister, as aforesaid, to China, unlawfully suspended one John C. Myers, then being consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, from the office of said consul-general at said Shanghai, and deprived him of the same; which said suspension of the said John C. Myers, from his office as aforesaid, was without authority of law, as the said Seward then and there well knew.

ARTICLE XII.

That the said George F. Seward, being envoy and minister to China as aforesaid, on the 27th day of March, A. D. 1877, well knowing that the said Oliver B. Bradford, who had, during the time when said Seward was consul-general as aforesaid, held the different offices specified in Article IV, and who had during said time kept the books of said office of consul-general, and been the private clerk of the said George F. Seward, knew that he, the said Seward, had during the time aforesaid willfully neglected to render true and just quarterly accounts and returns of the business of said office of consul-general and of moneys received by said Seward as such consul-general for the use of the United States, and well knowing that the said Bradford knew that he, the said Seward, had neglected to pay over moneys in his hands as such consul-general due to the United States as required by law, and well knowing that the said Bradford well knew that he, the said Seward, had been guilty of extortion, under color of his said office, in that he had charged excessive and illegal fees for his services as such consul-general, unlawfully suspended and removed one John C. Myers from the office of consul-general at Shanghai, China, he being then and there consul-general of the United States at said Shanghai, China, and appointed and procured to be appointed in the place of said Myers the said Bradford, which said suspension and appointment was without authority of law, and made solely for the purpose of enabling him, the said Seward, and him, the said Bradford, to secrete and conceal the crimes committed as aforesaid.

ARTICLE XIII.

That the said George F. Seward, from the 1st day of January, A. D. 1869, to the 31st day of December, A. D. 1875, then holding and exercising the office of consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, willfully neglected to render true and just quarterly accounts and returns of his office, and of moneys received by him for the use of the United States. And the said George F. Seward, during the time aforesaid, holding and exercising the office aforesaid, then and there having as such officer in his custody large and unexpended balances of moneys belonging to the United States at the end of each of said quarters, did neglect to pay over the balances of such moneys due to the United States at the expiration of each and every quarter during said time before the expiration of the next succeeding quarter, and he, the said George F. Seward, was thereby then and there guilty of embezzlement of the public moneys of the United States.

ARTICLE XIV.

That the said George F. Seward, being consul-general of the United States at Shanghai, China, between the 1st day of January, A. D. 1875, and the 31st day of December, A. D. 1875, willfully neglected during the time aforesaid to account to the Secretary of the Treasury and hold, subject to his draft or other direction, all the fees collected by him, the said Seward, as consul-general aforesaid, during the time aforesaid.

ARTICLE XV.

That the said George F. A message from the Senate, by Mr. Sympton, one of their clerks:

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed, without amendment, bills of the House of the following titles, viz:

H. R. 2518. An act granting jurisdiction and authority to the Court of Claims in the case of the schooner Don Pedro;

H. R. 6242. An act for the relief of soldiers and sailors becoming totally blind in the service of the country; and

H. R. 6270. An act for the relief of Joseph B. Collins.

The Senate have agreed to the amendments of the House to the bill of the Senate (S. 1685) to provide for taking the tenth and subsequent censuses.

The Senate have agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill (H. R. 5231) making appropriations for fortifications and other works of defense and the amount thereof, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and for other purposes.

The Senate insist on their amendments to the bill of the House (H. R. 6463) making appropriations for the construction, repair, preservation, and completion of certain works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes, disagreed to by the House of Representatives, agree to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and have appointed Mr. Spencer, Mr. McMillan, and Mr. Ransom the managers at the said conference on the part of the Senate.

The Senate insist on their amendments to the bill of the House (H. R. 4579) concerning street railroads in the District of Columbia, disagreed to by the House of Representatives, agree to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and have appointed Mr. Harris, Mr. Rollins, and Mr. Merrimon managers at the said conference on the part of the Senate.

The House thereupon resumed the consideration of the report from the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department;

When

Mr. Butler, as a question of privilege, proposed to submit a report from the Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the answer of George F. Seward in response to the order of the House, requiring him to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of the House, and all evidence and papers pertaining thereto, with instructions to report as early as practicable what action in their judgment should be taken by the House in relation to the said matter.

The Speaker held the said report from the Committee on the Judiciary not to be in order at this time, for the reason that a question of high constitutional privilege was pending, which the House by a yea and nay vote had determined to consider, and on which report and accompanying resolutions the main question had been ordered.

Mr. Banks appealed from the decision of the Speaker;

And the question being,

Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

Pending which,

Mr. Springer moved that the said appeal do lie on the table;

And the question being put,

It was decided in the affirmative,	{	Yeas .....	125

SEC. 3. The Postmaster-General shall, in all cases, decide upon what trains and in what manner the mails shall be conveyed.

SEC. 4. That all cars or parts of cars used for the railway mail service shall be of such style, length, and character, and furnished in such manner, as shall be required by the Postmaster-General, and shall be constructed, fitted up, maintained, heated, and lighted by and at the expense of the railroad companies.

SEC. 5. That the Postmaster-General shall deduct from the pay of the railroad companies, for every failure to deliver a mail within its schedule time, not less than one-half of the price of the trip, and where the trip is not performed, not less than the price of one trip, and not exceeding, in either case, the price of three trips: Provided, however, That if the failure is caused by a connecting road, then only the connecting road shall be fined. And where such failure is caused by unavoidable casualty, the Postmaster-General, in his discretion, may remit the fine. And he may make deductions and impose fines for other delinquencies.

SEC. 6. That the Postmaster-General shall request all railroad companies transporting the mails to furnish, under seal, such data relating to the operating, receipts, and expenditures of such roads as may, in his judgment, be deemed necessary to enable him to ascertain the cost of mail transportation and the proper compensation to be paid for the same; and he shall, in his annual report to Congress, make such recommendations, founded on the information obtained under this section, as shall, in his opinion, be just and equitable.

SEC. 7. That mailable matter shall be divided into four classes:

First, written matter;

Second, periodical publications;

Third, miscellaneous printed matter;

Fourth, merchandise.

SEC. 8. Mailable matter of the first class shall embrace letters, postal cards, and all matters wholly or partly in writing, except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 9. That on mailable matter of the first class, except postal cards and drop-letters, postage shall be prepaid at the rate of three cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof; postal cards shall be transmitted through the mails at a postage charge of one cent each, including the cost of manufacture; and drop-letters shall be mailed at the rate of two cents per half ounce or fraction thereof, including delivery at letter-carrier offices, and one cent for each half ounce or fraction thereof where free delivery by carrier is not established. The Postmaster-General may, however, provide by regulation for transmitting unpaid and duly-certified letters of soldiers, sailors, and marines in the service of the United States to their destination, to be paid on delivery.

SEC. 10. That mailable matter of the second class shall embrace all newspapers and other periodical publications which are issued at stated intervals, and as frequently as four times a year, and are within the conditions named in sections twelve and fourteen.

SEC. 11. Publications of the second class, except as provided in section twenty-five, when sent by the publisher thereof, and from the office of publication, including sample copies, or when sent from a news-agency to actual subscribers thereto, or to other news-agents, shall be entitled to transmission through the mails at two cents a pound or fraction thereof, such postage to be prepaid, as now provided by law.

SEC. 12. That matter of the second class may be examined at the office of mailing, and if found to contain matter which is subject to a higher rate of postage, such matter shall be charged with postage at the rate to which the inclosed matter is subject: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prohibit the insertion in periodicals of advertisements attached permanently to the same.

SEC. 13. That any person who shall submit, or cause to be submitted, for transportation in the mails, any false evidence to the postmaster relative to the character of his publication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall for every such offense be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

SEC. 14. That the conditions upon which a publication shall be admitted to the second class are as follows:

First. It must regularly be issued at stated intervals, as frequently as four times a year, and bear a date of issue, and be numbered consecutively.

Second. It must be issued from a known office of publication.

Third. It must be formed of printed paper sheets, without board, cloth, leather, or other substantial binding, such as distinguish printed books for preservation from periodical publications.

Fourth. It must be originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or devoted to literature, the sciences, arts, or some special industry, and having a legitimate list of subscribers: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to admit to the second-class rate regular publications designed primarily for advertising purposes, or for free circulation or for circulation at nominal rates.

SEC. 15. That foreign newspapers and other periodicals of the same general character as those admitted to the second class in the United States may, under the direction of the Postmaster-General, on application of the publishers thereof or their agents, be transmitted through the mails at the same rates as if published in the United States. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to allow the transmission through the mails of any publication which violates any copyright granted by the United States.

SEC. 16. That publishers of matter of the second class may, without subjecting it to extra postage, fold within their regular issues a supplement; but in all cases the added matter must be germane to the publication which it supplements, that is to say, matter supplied in order to complete that to which it is added or supplemented, but omitted from the regular issue for want of space, time, or greater convenience, which supplement must in every case be issued with the publication.

SEC. 17. That mail-matter of the third class shall embrace books, transient newspapers, and periodicals, circulars, and other matter wholly in print (not included in section twelve), proof-sheets, corrected proof-sheets, and manuscript copy accompanying the same, and postage shall be paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, and shall fully be prepaid by postage-stamps affixed to said matter. Printed matter other than books received in the mails from foreign countries under the provisions of postal treaties or conventions shall be free of customs duty, and books which are admitted to the international mails exchanged under the provisions of the universal postal union convention may, when subject to customs duty, be delivered to addresses in the United States under such regulations for the collection of duties as may be agreed upon by the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster-General.

SEC. 18. That the term "circular" is defined to be a printed letter, which, according to internal evidence, is being sent in identical terms to several persons. A circular shall not lose its character as such when the date and the name of the addressee and of the sender shall be therein written, nor by the correction of mere typographical errors in writing.

SEC. 19. That "printed matter" within the intentment of this act is defined to be the reproduction upon paper, by any process except that of handwriting, of any words, letters, characters, figures, or images, or of any combination thereof, not having the character of an actual and personal correspondence.

SEC. 20. That mailable matter of the fourth class shall embrace all matter not embraced in the first, second, or third class, which is not in its form or nature liable to destroy, deface, or otherwise damage the contents of the mailbag, or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service, and is not above the weight provided by law, which is hereby declared to be not exceeding four pounds for each package thereof, except in case of single books weighing in excess of that amount, and except for books and documents published or circulated by order of Congress, or official matter emanating from any of the departments of the government or from the Smithsonian Institution, or which is not declared non-mailable under the provisions of section thirty-eight hundred and ninety-three of the Revised Statutes as amended by the act of July twelfth, eighteen hundred and seventy-six, or matter appertaining to lotteries, gift concerts, or fraudulent schemes or devices.

SEC. 21. That all matter of the fourth class shall be subject to examination and to a postage charge at the rate of one cent an ounce or fraction thereof, to be prepaid by stamps affixed. If any matter excluded from the mails by the preceding section of this act, except that declared non-mailable by section thirty-eight hundred and ninety-three of the Revised Statutes as amended, shall, by inadvertence, reach the office of destination, the same shall be delivered in accordance with its address: Provided, That the party addressed shall furnish the name and address of the sender to the postmaster at the office of delivery, who shall immediately report the facts to the Postmaster-General. If the person addressed refuse to give the required information, the postmaster shall hold the package subject to the order of the Postmaster-General. All matter declared non-mailable by section thirty-eight hundred and ninety-three of the Revised Statutes as amended, which shall reach the office of delivery, shall be held by the postmaster at the said office subject to the order of the Postmaster-General.

SEC. 22. That mailable matter of the second class shall contain no writing, print, mark, or sign thereon or therein in addition to the original print, except as herein provided, to wit, the name and address of the person to whom the matter shall be sent, and index-figures of subscription-book, either written or printed, the printed title of the publication, the printed name and address of the publisher or sender of the same, and written or printed words or figures, or both, indicating the date on which the subscription to such matter will end. Upon matter of the third class, or upon the wrapper inclosing the same, the sender may write his own name or address thereon, with the word "from" above and preceding the same, and in either case may make simple marks intended to designate a word or passage of the text to which it is desired to call attention. There may be placed upon the cover or blank leaves of any book or of any printed matter of the third class a simple manuscript dedication or inscription that does not partake of the nature of a personal correspondence. Upon any package of matter of the fourth class the sender may write or print his own name and address, preceded by the word "from", and there may also be written or printed the number and names of the articles inclosed; and the sender thereof may write or print upon or attach to any such article, by tag or label, a mark, number, name, or letter for the purpose of identification.

SEC. 23. That matter of the second, third, or fourth class containing any writing or printing other than indicated in the preceding section, or made in the manner other than therein indicated, shall not be delivered except upon the payment of postage for matter of the first class, deducting therefrom any amount which may have been prepaid by stamps affixed to such matter; and any person who shall conceal or inclose any matter of a higher class in that of a lower class, and deposit, or cause the same to be deposited, for conveyance by mail, at a less rate than would be charged for both such higher and lower class matter, shall, for every such offense, be liable to a penalty of ten dollars: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent publishers of the second class and news agents from inclosing in their publications, bills, receipts, and orders for subscriptions thereto; but such bills, receipts, and orders shall be in such form as to convey no other information than the name, location, and subscription-price of the publication or publications to which they refer.

SEC. 24. That the Postmaster-General may prescribe, by regulation, the manner of wrapping and securing for the mails all packages of matter not charged with first-class postage, so that the contents of such packages may be easily examined; and no package the contents of which cannot be easily examined shall pass in the mails, or be delivered at a less rate than for matter of the first class.

SEC. 25. That publications of the second class, one copy to each actual subscriber residing in the county where the same are printed, in whole or in part, and published, shall go free through the mails; but the same shall not be delivered at letter-carrier offices, or distributed by carriers, unless postage is paid thereon at the rate prescribed in section thirteen of this act: Provided, That the rate of postage on newspapers, excepting weeklies, and periodicals not exceeding two ounces in weight, when the same are deposited in a letter-carrier office for delivery by its carriers, shall be uniform at one cent each; periodicals weighing more than two ounces shall be subject, when delivered by such carriers, to a postage of two cents each, and these rates shall be prepaid by stamps affixed.

SEC. 26. That all mail matter of the first class upon which one full rate of postage has been prepaid shall be forwarded to its destination, charged with the unpaid rate, to be collected on delivery; but postmasters, before delivering the same, or any article of mail matter upon which prepayment in full has not been made, shall affix, or cause to be affixed, and canceled, as ordinary stamps are canceled, one or more stamps equivalent in value to the amount of postage due on such article of mail matter, which stamps shall be of such special design and denomination as the Postmaster-General may prescribe, and which shall in no case be sold by any postmaster nor received by him in prepayment of postage. That in lieu of the commission now allowed to postmasters at offices of the fourth class upon the amount of unpaid letter-postage collected, such postmasters shall receive a commission upon the amount of such special stamps so canceled, the same as now allowed upon postage-stamps, stamped envelopes, postal cards, and newspaper and periodical stamps, canceled as postages on matter actually mailed at their offices: Provided, The Postmaster-General may, in his discretion, prescribe instead such regulation therefor at the offices where free delivery is established as, in his judgment, the good of the service may require.

SEC. 27. That any postmaster or other person engaged in the postal service who shall collect, and fail to account for, the postage due upon any article of mail matter which he may deliver, without having previously affixed and canceled such special stamps, as hereinbefore provided, or who shall fail to affix such stamp, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of fifty dollars.

SEC. 28. That any person who shall use, or attempt to use, in payment of postage, any canceled postage-stamp or postage-stamps, whether the same have been before used or not, or who shall by any means remove, or attempt to remove, or assist in removing, marks from any postage-stamp or postage-stamps, with intent to use the same in payment of postage, or who knowingly shall have in his possession any postage-stamp or postage-stamps canceled, with intent to use the same, or from which such cancellation marks have been removed, or who shall sell or offer to sell any such stamp or stamps, or who shall use or attempt to use the same in payment of postage, or who shall remove the superscription from any stamped envelope or postal card that has once been used in the payment of postage, with intent to again use the same for a like purpose, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 29. The provisions of the fifth and sixth sections of the act entitled "An act establishing post-routes, and for other purposes," approved March three, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, for the transmission of official mail matter, be, and they are hereby, extended to all officers of the United States Government, and made applicable to all official mail matter transmitted between any of the officers of the United States, or between any such officer and either of the executive departments or officers of the government, the envelopes of such matter in all cases to bear appropriate indorsements containing the proper designation of the office from which the same is transmitted, with a statement of the penalty for their misuse. And the provisions of said fifth and sixth sections are hereby likewise extended and made applicable to all official mail matter sent from the Smithsonian Institution: Provided, That this act shall not extend or apply to pension agents or other officers who receive a fixed allowance as compensation for their services, including expenses for postage.

SEC. 30. That section thirty-nine hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows: "The Postmaster-General, whenever he may deem it consistent with the public interest, may accept or require new surety upon any contract existing or hereafter made for carrying the mails, in substitution for and release of any existing surety."

SEC. 31. Any person performing the duties of postmaster, by authority of the President, at any post-office where there is a vacancy for any cause, shall receive for the term for which the duty is performed the same compensation to which he would have been entitled if regularly appointed and confirmed as such postmaster; and all services heretofore rendered in like cases shall be paid for under this provision.

SEC. 32. That so much of this act as is embraced in sections four to thirty, both inclusive, shall take effect from the first day of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine; and all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

[Confidential.]

“SPECIAL AGENCY OF THE UNITED “STATES TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

“Baltimore, Maryland, September 2, 1876.

DEAR MAJOR: After leaving you I got the points, and I think there is no trouble whatever. In fact, the evidence is in the Treasury building to show that two appropriation warrants were illegally signed to get money to continue operations of the Engraving and Printing department, which was directly in the interest of Samuel J. Randall, who is a large stockholder in the paper-mill which is alone authorized to supply the Bureau of Engraving and Printing with paper for bonds, bank-notes, &c., and was accomplished through the influence of Randall, William Hemphill Jones, and George B. McCartee. I understand that Comptroller Robert W. Tayler signed the warrant through the influence and misrepresentations of Jones, and, it is said, Conant signed as Acting Secretary in Bristow's absence, and with a full knowledge of the illegality of them. Of this latter I am not prepared to say, but think it true; but that there was two such warrants issued, amounting, together, to about $270,000 ($263,000 is the real amount), there is no doubt, and the warrants can be produced.

“H. L. WILLIAMS,

“To Major WILLIAM B. MOORE,

“Supervising Special Agent, Treasury Department”—

which appeared in the columns of the Commercial Bulletin, of New York, of the 26th, and the Washington Post of the 27th ultimo, submit this their report:

Your committee, after a full examination, under oath, of H. L. Williams, the writer of this letter, William B. Moore, to whom it was addressed, the officers of the government having knowledge of the signing of the warrants in question, and every other person that there was reason to believe knew anything of the matter in this letter detailed and the purpose of its publication, all of which is herewith submitted, find that the statements therein made as to the illegality of the warrants, the object of their signing, the interest of Hon. Samuel J. Randall in the paper-mill which supplied the Bureau of Engraving and Printing with paper for bonds, bank-notes, &c., and the signing of the warrants by the Acting Secretary of the Treasury through the influence and misrepresentations of William Hemphill Jones, are absolutely without foundation in fact.

Early in the year 1875 there was due from the Internal Revenue department of the Treasury to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for stamps the amount covered by the two warrants mentioned.

The Internal Revenue department had exceeded its appropriations for “dies, paper, and stamps,” and was without means to pay the Bureau of Engraving and Printing its account for stamps.

There was an unexpended balance of the appropriation of $1,125,000 of that fiscal year for “labor on and other expenses of engraving and printing notes, bonds, and other securities of the United States.”

To meet this deficiency in the appropriations for “dies, paper, and stamps,” and make available the balance of the appropriation “for labor and other expenses of engraving and printing notes, bonds, and other securities of the United States" for the payment to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing its accounts for stamps furnished the Internal Revenue department, the Secretary of the Treasury sent to the Forty-third Congress at its second session estimates of these deficiencies, with a statement from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue as to the debt to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The facts thus appearing to Congress, in the two general appropriation acts, approved March 3, 1875, the one "making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, and for other purposes," and the other "making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1875, and prior years, and for other purposes," provided as follows:

"To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to adjust 'the account of the expenditure for dies, paper, and stamps for the Internal Revenue department' for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1875, a transfer on the books of the Treasury of such sum as may be necessary is hereby authorized: Provided, That the same shall not involve any actual expenditure of money from the Treasury."

"To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to adjust the account of the expenditure 'for dies, paper, and stamps for the Internal Revenue department' for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1874, a transfer on the books of the Treasury of such sum as may be necessary is hereby authorized: Provided, That the same shall not involve any actual expenditure of money from the Treasury."

Under these provisions of law the two warrants in question were signed, and at the expiration of that fiscal year the appropriation warrant for the sum covered by the two transfer warrants was issued, adjusting the account of the expenditures for "dies, paper, and stamps" for the Internal Revenue department, and in transferring on the books of the Treasury the amount of the two warrants from one appropriation to another the debt due from the Internal Revenue department to the Bureau of Engraving was discharged.

The entire transaction was in perfect accordance with law. It involved no increased expenditure of money from the Treasury. No personal interest of Hon. Samuel J. Randall, the officials conducting the transaction, or persons having contracts with the Bureau of Engraving and Printing were or could have been affected thereby.

Whatever may have suggested the writing of this letter by Williams to Moore; whether intended to secure increased favor for both from the President, to whom it was read, as it was nothing more than the product of minds anxious in the search of official corruption; or for the appearance of activity in the performance of the duties of their positions, as agents in the secret service of the government, it is certain that every statement of wrong therein made was without even the semblance of truth, and at no time seemed to have deserved and never received official consideration.

Your committee would be remiss in duty if they should submit their report to the House without calling attention to the fact that this letter containing such grave charges against reputable gentlemen, notably against the Speaker of this House, admitted to be false by its author and its recipient, was hawked about the streets of Washington for sale to the press, the highest price named being $5; that it was promptly rejected by the Evening Star of this city, its reporter testifying that its falsity was apparent and was slanderous and libelous; that it was published by the Commercial Bulletin, of New York, and the Washington

Post, with every avenue of information as to the correctness of its statements open.

Your committee admit that just criticism of official conduct is highly proper and conducive to the public good, but cannot refrain from saying that the publishing of this letter under all the circumstances evinces such a reckless disregard of public right and personal reputation as to entitle it to the severest censure.

MILTON A. CANDLER.
WM. P. LYNDE.
J. W. THROCKMORTON.
WM. P. FRYE.

After debate,

Mr. Candler demanded the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the report was unanimously adopted.

Pending which,

In transmitting this report for the consideration of Congress, I express, I believe, the general judgment of the country, as well as my own, in assigning to this exhibition a measure of success gratifying to the pride and patriotism of our people and full of promise to the great industrial and commercial interests of the nation. The very ample and generous contributions which the foreign nations made to the splendor and usefulness of the exhibition, and the cordiality with which their representatives took part in our national commemoration, deserve our profound acknowledgments. At this close of the great services rendered by the United States Centennial Commission and the Centennial Board of Finance, it gives me great pleasure to commend to your attention and that of the people of the whole country the laborious, faithful, and prosperous performances of their duties which have marked the administration of their respective trusts.

The Speaker rose and addressed the House as follows, viz :

REPRESENTATIVES : In a moment this Congress will expire. Its acts, whether for weal or woe, are indelibly inscribed on the pages of history. In this Hall party has been arrayed against party and interest against interest in fierce and bitter struggle; but it is due to truth to say that on every side there has been honest ambition to win popular esteem by seeking, each in his own way and according to his best judgment, the general welfare. Whether or not the desired end of the public good has been successfully attained is for time to prove; but that such has been the aim of both sides cannot justly be disputed.

Genuine concord between all the States and the citizens thereof is the corner-stone of our national prosperity. What prostrates or elevates one at the expense of the other inevitably inures to the ultimate injury of all. Although each Representative has championed the wishes of his immediate constituency with earnestness and energy, yet during the whole period of the existence of this House there has not been a single breach of legislative decorum. That noble respect, born of generous rivalry in a common good cause, has softened all asperities.

I feel that mere words are inadequate to thank fully this House for its resolution of approval of the manner in which I have discharged the duties of Speaker, always responsible and onerous, and often most delicate and difficult. I have done my best.

Long service here has taught me that hate or vengeance has never raised any cause to enduring honor, while, on the contrary, justice and mutual regard have often given the weaker side an easy victory. With two great parties dividing the people, each holding an important share in government, with strict accountability on the part of public servants and vigilant eyes watching all, with reviving business and restored confidence, may we not look hopefully to the early dawn of a new era of increased prosperity and greater happiness for the country? Such is my fervent prayer.

To each and every Representative here I desire to tender my heartfelt acknowledgment for the kindly forbearance extended to me as presiding officer of this House, and to say that I shall ever gratefully cherish the honor of which I have been the recipient.

With the expression of the wish that you all may return safely and in health to your homes, it only remains for me to declare that, in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, this House stands adjourned without day.

And it shall be, moreover, the duty of the said committees to report, from time to time, whether any, and what, retrenchment can be made in the expenditures of the several departments, without detriment to the public service; whether any, and what, abuses at any time exist in the failure to enforce the payment of moneys which may be due to the United States from public defaulters or others; and to report, from time to time, such provisions and arrangements as may be necessary to add to the economy of the several departments and the accountability of their officers.—March 30, 1816.

OF COMMITTEES OF THE WHOLE.

104. The House may at any time, by vote of a majority of the members present, suspend the rules and orders for the purpose of going into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union; and also for providing for the discharge of the Committee of the Whole House, and the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union—January 25, 1848—from the further consideration of any bill referred to it, after acting without debate on all amendments pending and that may be offered.—March 11, 1844.

105. In forming a Committee of the Whole House, the Speaker shall leave his chair, and a chairman, to preside in committee, shall be appointed by the Speaker.—April 7, 1789.

106. Whenever the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, or the Committee of the Whole House, finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall cause the roll of the House to be called, and thereupon the committee shall rise, and the chairman shall report the name of the absentees to the House, which shall be entered on the Journal.—December 18, 1847.

107. Upon bills committed to a Committee of the Whole House, the bill shall be first read throughout by the Clerk, and then again read and debated by clauses, leaving the preamble to be last considered; the body of the bill shall not be defaced or interlined; but all amendments, noting the page and line, shall be duly entered by the Clerk on a separate paper, as the same shall be agreed to by the committee, and so reported to the House. After report, the bill shall again be subject to be debated and amended by clauses before the question to engross it be taken.—April 17, 1789.

108. All amendments made to an original motion in committee shall be incorporated with the motion, and so reported.—April 7, 1789.

109. All amendments made to a report committed to a Committee of the Whole House shall be noted and reported, as in the case of bills.—April 7, 1789.

110. No motion or proposition for a tax or charge upon the people shall be discussed the day on which it is made or offered, and every such proposition shall receive its first discussion in a committee of the Whole House.—November 13, 1794.

111. No sum or quantum of tax or duty voted by a Committee of the Whole House, shall be increased in the House until the motion or proposition for such increase shall be first discussed and voted in a Committee of the Whole House; and so in respect to the time of its continuance.—November 13, 1794.

112. All proceedings touching appropriations of money and all bills making appropriations of money or property, or requiring such appropriations to be made, or authorizing payments out of appropriations already made, shall be first discussed in a Committee of the Whole House.—January 13, 1874.

113. The rules of proceedings in the House shall be observed in a Committee of the Whole House so far as they may be applicable, except the rule limiting the times of speaking—April 7, 1789; but no member shall speak twice to any question until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken.—December 18, 1803.

114. In Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, the bills shall be taken up and disposed of in their order on the calendar; but when objection is made to the consideration of a bill, a majority of the committee shall decide, without debate, whether it shall be taken up and disposed of, or laid aside: Provided, That general appropriation bills, and, in time of war, bills for raising men or money, and bills concerning a treaty of peace, shall be preferred to all other bills, at the discretion of the committee; and when demanded by any member, the question shall first be put in regard to them—July 27, 1848; and all debate on special orders shall be confined strictly to the measure under consideration.—March 16, 1860.

OF BILLS.

115. Every bill shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by motion for leave. In the latter case, at least one day's notice shall be given of the motion in the House, or by filing a memorandum thereof with the Clerk, and having it entered on the Journal; and the motion shall be made, and the bill introduced, if leave is given, when resolutions are called for; such motion, or the bill when introduced, may be committed—April 7, 1789; September 15, 1837; and March 2, 1838. But the Speaker shall not entertain a motion for leave to introduce a bill or joint resolution for the establishment or change of post-routes, and all propositions relating thereto shall be referred, under the rule, like petitions and other papers, to the appropriate committee.—May 5, 1870.

116. Every bill shall receive three several readings in the House previous to its passage; and bills shall be dispatched in order as they were introduced, unless where the House shall direct otherwise; but no bill shall be twice read on the same day without special order of the House.—April 7, 1789.

117. The first reading of the bill shall be for information, and, if opposition be made to it, the question shall be, "Shall this bill be rejected?" If no opposition be made, or if the question to reject be negative, the bill shall go to its second reading without a question.—April 7, 1789.

118. Upon the second reading of a bill, the Speaker shall state it as ready for commitment or engrossment; and, if committed, then a question shall be, whether to a select or standing committee, or to a Committee of the Whole House; if to a Committee of the Whole House, the House shall determine on what day—November 13, 1794; if no motion be made to commit, the question shall be stated on its engrossment; and if it be not ordered to be engrossed on the day of its being reported, it shall be placed on the general file on the Speaker's table, to be taken up in order—September 14, 1837. But if the bill be ordered to be engrossed, the House shall appoint the day when it shall be read the third time.—November 13, 1874.

119. General appropriation bills shall be in order in preference to any other bills of a public nature, unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the House.—September 14, 1837.

And the House may at any time, by a vote of the majority of the members present, make any of the general appropriation bills a special order.—March 16, 1860.

120. No appropriation shall be reported in such general appropriation bills, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law—September 14, 1837—unless in continuation of appropriations for such public works and objects as are already in progress; nor shall any provision in any such bill or amendment thereto, changing existing law, be in order except such as, being germane to the subject-matter of the bill, shall retrench expenditures.—January 18, 1876.

121. Upon the engrossment of any bill making appropriations of money for works of internal improvement of any kind or description, it shall be in the power of any member to call for a division of the question, so as to take a separate vote of the House upon each item of improvement or appropriation contained in said bill, or upon such items separately and others collectively, as the members making the call may specify; and if one-fifth of the members present second said call, it shall be the duty of the Speaker to make such divisions of the question, and put them to vote accordingly.—February 26, 1846.

122. The bills from the Court of Claims shall, on being laid before the House, be read a first and second time, committed to a Committee of the Whole House, and, together with the accompanying reports, printed.—March 16, 1860.

123. A motion to strike out the enacting words of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend; and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection.—March 16, 1822. Whenever a bill is reported from a Committee of the Whole, with a recommendation to strike out the enacting words, and such recommendation is disagreed to by the House, the bill shall stand recommitted to the said committee without further action by the House.—March 16, 1860. But before the question of concurrence is submitted, it is in order to entertain a motion to refer the bill to any committee, with or without instructions, and when the same is again reported to the House, it shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole without debate, and resume its original place on the calendar.—May 26, 1870.

124. After commitment and report thereof to the House, or at any time before its passage, a bill may be recommitted—April 7, 1789; and should such recommitment take place after its engrossment, and an amendment be reported and agreed to by the House, the question shall be again put on the engrossment of the bill.—March 16, 1860.

125. All bills ordered to be engrossed shall be executed in a fair round hand.—April 7, 1789.

126. No amendment by way of rider shall be received to any bill on its third reading.—April 8, 1814.

127. When a bill shall pass, it shall be certified by the Clerk, noting the day of its passage at the foot thereof.—April 7, 1789.

LOCAL OR PRIVATE BUSINESS.

128. Friday in every week shall be set apart for the consideration of private bills and private business, in preference to any other, unless otherwise determined by a majority of the House.—January 22, 1810; January 26, 1826; and May 8, 1874.

129. On the first and fourth Friday of each month, the calendar of private bills shall be called over (the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House commencing the call where he left off the previous day), and the bills to the passage of which no objections shall then be made shall be first considered and disposed of.—January 25, 1839. But when a bill is again reached, after having been once objected to, the committee shall consider and dispose of the same, unless it shall again be objected to by at least five members.—March 16, 1860; May 8, 1874.

OF BILLS ON LEAVE AND RESOLUTIONS.

130. All the States and Territories shall be called for bills on leave and resolutions every Monday during each session of Congress; and, if necessary to secure the object on said days, all resolutions which shall give rise to debate shall lie over for discussion, under the rules of the House already established; and the whole of said days shall be appropriated to bills on leave and resolutions, until all the States and Territories are called through.—February 6, 1838. And the Speaker shall first call the States and Territories for bills on leave; and all bills so introduced during the first hour after the Journal is read shall be referred, without debate, to their appropriate committees: Provided, however, That a bill so introduced and referred, and all bills at any time introduced by unanimous consent and referred, shall not be brought back into the House upon a motion to reconsider.—March 16, 1860, and January 11, 1872. And on said call, joint resolutions of State and Territorial legislatures for printing and reference may be introduced.—January 11, 1867.

OF PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

131. Members having petitions and memorials to present may hand them to the Clerk, indorsing the same with their names, and the reference or disposition to be made thereof; and such petitions and memorials shall be entered on the Journal, subject to the control and direction of the Speaker, and if any petition or memorial be so handed in which, in the judgment of the Speaker, is excluded by the rules, the same shall be returned to the member from whom it was received.—March 29, 1842.

OF THE PREVIOUS QUESTION.

132. The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?"—April 7, 1789. It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present.—February 24, 1812; and its effects shall be to put an end to all debate, and to bring the House to a direct vote upon a motion to commit, if such motion shall have been made; and if this motion does not prevail, then upon amendments reported by a committee, if any; then—August 5, 1848—upon pending amendments, and then upon the main question.—January 14, 1840. But its only effect, if a motion to postpone is pending, shall be to bring the House to a vote upon such motion. Whenever the House shall refuse to order the main question, the consideration of the subject shall be resumed as though no motion for the previous question had been made. The House may also, at any time, on motion seconded by a majority of the members present, close all debate upon a pending amendment, or an amendment thereto, and cause the question to be put thereon; and this shall not preclude any further amendment or debate upon the bill. A call of the House shall not be in order after the previous question is seconded, unless it shall appear, upon an actual count by the Speaker, that no quorum is present.—March 16, 1860.

133. On a previous question there shall be no debate.—December 17, 1805. All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.—September 15, 1837.

OF ADMISSION ON THE FLOOR.

134. No person except members of the Senate, their Secretary, heads of departments, the President's private secretary, foreign ministers, the governor for the time being of any State, Senators and Representatives elect, judges of the Supreme Court of the United States and of the Court of Claims, and such persons as have by name received the thanks of Congress—March 15, 1867—shall be admitted within the hall of the House of Representatives—March 19, 1860—or any of the rooms upon the same floor or leading into the same—March 2, 1865: Provided, That ex-members of Congress who are not interested in any claim pending before Congress, and shall so register themselves, may also be admitted within the hall of the House; and no persons except those herein specified shall at any time be admitted to the floor of the House.—March 15, 1867.

OF REPORTERS.

135. Stenographers and reporters, other than the official reporters of the House, wishing to take down the debates, may be admitted by the Speaker to the reporters' gallery over the Speaker's chair, but not on the floor of the House; but no person shall be allowed the privilege of said gallery under the character of stenographer or reporter without a written permission of the Speaker, specifying the part of said gallery assigned to him; nor shall said stenographer or reporter be admitted to said gallery unless he shall state in writing for what paper or papers he is employed to report; nor shall he be so admitted, or, if admitted, be suffered to retain his seat, if he shall be or become an agent to prosecute any claim pending before Congress; and the Speaker shall give his written permission with this condition.—December 23, 1857.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS OF THE SESSION.

136. After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of any Congress, all bills, resolutions, and reports which originated in the House, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined, shall be resumed and acted on in the same manner as if an adjournment had not taken place.—March 17, 1848. And all business before committees of the House at the end of one session shall be resumed at the commencement of the next session of the same Congress, as if no adjournment had taken place.—March 16, 1860.

MISCELLANEOUS.

137. Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, the House shall be cleared of all persons, except the members, Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Doorkeeper, and so continue during the reading of such communications, and (unless otherwise directed by the House) during all debates and proceedings to be had thereon. And when the Speaker, or any other member, shall inform the House that he has communications to make which he conceives ought to be kept secret, the House shall, in like manner, be cleared till the communication be made; the House shall then determine whether the matter communicated requires secrecy or not, and take order accordingly.—February 17, 1792, and December 30, 1793.

138. The rule for paying witnesses summoned to appear before this House, or either of its committees, shall be as follows: For each day a witness shall attend, the sum of four dollars; for each mile he shall travel in coming to or going from the place of examination, the sum of five cents each way; but nothing shall be paid for traveling when the witness has been summoned at the place of trial.—May 21, 1872.

139. Maps accompanying documents shall not be printed, under the general order to print, without the special direction of the House.—March 2, 1837; September 11, 1837.

140. No extra compensation shall be allowed to any officer or messenger, page, laborer, or other person in the service of the House, or engaged in or about the public grounds or buildings; and no person shall be an officer of the House, or continue in its employment, who shall be an agent for the prosecution of any claim against the government, or be interested in such claim otherwise than as an original claimant; and it shall be the duty of the Committee of Accounts to inquire into and report to the House any violation of this rule.—March 8, 1842.

154. The allowance of stationery to each member and Delegate shall be of the value of seventy-five dollars for a long session, and forty-five dollars for a short session of Congress.—December 19, 1865. (By law, the allowance for stationery and newspapers is fixed at one hundred and twenty-five dollars for each session.)

155. The hall of the House shall not be used for any other purpose than the legitimate business of the House, nor shall the Speaker entertain any proposition to use it for any other purpose, or for the suspension of this rule: Provided, That this shall not interfere with the performance of divine service therein, under the direction of the Speaker, or with the use of the same for caucus meetings of the members, or upon occasions where the House may, by resolution, agree to take part in any ceremonies to be observed therein.—January 31, 1866.

162. 164. All motions to withdraw papers from the files of the House shall be referred to the committee which last considered the case, who shall report without delay whether or not copies shall be left on file, but original papers shall not be withdrawn in any case where an adverse report has been made; and whenever the report is adverse, the same shall be in writing and ordered to be printed.—December 18, 1873.

JOINT RULES AND ORDERS OF THE TWO HOUSES, AS THEY EXISTED AT THE CLOSE OF THE 43D CONGRESS.

1. In every case of an amendment of a bill agreed to in one house and dissented to in the other, if either house shall request a conference, and appoint a committee for that purpose, and the other house shall also appoint a committee to confer, such committees shall, at a convenient hour, to be agreed upon by their chairmen, meet in the conference chamber, and state to each other, verbally or in writing, as either shall choose, the reasons of their respective houses for and against the amendment, and confer freely thereon.—November 13, 1794.

2. When a message shall be sent from the Senate to the House of Representatives, it shall be announced at the door of the House by the Doorkeeper, and shall be respectfully communicated to the Chair by the person by whom it may be sent.—November 13, 1794.

3. The same ceremony shall be observed when a messenger shall be sent from the House of Representatives to the Senate.—November 13, 1794.

4. Messages shall be sent by such persons as a sense of propriety in each house may determine to be proper.—November 13, 1794.

5. While bills are on their passage between the two houses they shall be on paper, and under the signature of the Secretary or Clerk of each house, respectively.—November 13, 1794.

6. After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled on parchment by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, or the Secretary of the Senate, as the bill may have originated in the one or the other house, before it shall be presented to the President of the United States.—November 13, 1794.

7. When bills are enrolled, they shall be examined by a joint committee of two from the Senate and two from the House of Representatives, appointed as a standing committee for that purpose, who shall carefully compare the enrollment with the engrossed bills as passed in the two houses, and correcting any errors that may be discovered in the enrolled bills make their report forthwith to their respective houses.—November 13, 1794, and February 1, 1827.

8. After examination and report, each bill shall be signed in the respective houses, first by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, then by the President of the Senate.—November 13, 1794.

9. After a bill shall have been thus signed in each house, it shall be presented by the said committee to the President of the United States for his approbation (it being first indorsed on the back of the roll, certifying in which house the same originated; which indorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Clerk, as the case may be, of the house in which the same did originate), and shall be entered on the Journal of each house. The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the President; which time shall also be carefully entered on the Journal of each house.—November 13, 1794.

10. All orders, resolutions, and votes which are to be presented to the President of the United States for his approbation shall also, in the same manner, be previously enrolled, examined, and signed; and shall be presented in the same manner, and by the same committee, as provided in the cases of bills.—November 13, 1794.

11. When the Senate and House of Representatives shall judge it proper to make a joint address to the President, it shall be presented to him in his audience chamber by the President of the Senate, in the presence of the Speaker and both houses.—November 13, 1794.

12. When the bill or resolution which shall have passed in one house is rejected in the other, notice thereof shall be given to the house in which the same shall have passed.—June 10, 1790.

13. When a bill or resolution which has been passed in one house shall be rejected in the other, it shall not be brought in during the same session, without a notice of ten days and leave of two-thirds of that house in which it shall be renewed.—June 10, 1790.

14. Each house shall transmit to the other all papers on which any bill or resolution shall be founded.—June 10, 1790.

15. After each house shall have adhered to their disagreement, a bill or resolution shall be lost.—June 10, 1790.

16. No bill that shall have passed one house shall be sent for concurrence to the other on either of the three last days of the session.—January 30, 1822.

17. No bill or resolution that shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall be presented to the President of the United States, for his approbation, on the last day of the session.—January 30, 1822.

18. When bills which have passed one house are ordered to be printed in the other, a greater number of copies shall not be printed than may be necessary for the use of the house making the order.—February 9, 1829.

19. No spirituous or malt liquors, or wines, shall be offered for sale, exhibited, or kept within the Capitol, or in any room or building connected therewith, or on the public grounds adjacent thereto. And it shall be the duty of the Sergeants-at-Arms of the two houses, under the supervision of the presiding officers thereof, respectively, to enforce the foregoing provisions. And any officer or employé of either house who shall in any manner violate or connive at the violation of this rule shall be dismissed from office.—March 18, 1867.

20. There shall be a joint committee on the Library, to consist of three members on the part of the Senate, and three on the part of the House of Representatives, to superintend and direct the expenditure of all moneys appropriated for the Library, and to perform such other duties as are or may be directed by law.—December 7, 1843.

21. After six days from the commencement of a second or subsequent session of Congress, all bills, resolutions, or reports which originated in either house, and at the close of the next preceding session remained undetermined in either house, shall be resumed and acted on in the same manner as if an adjournment had not taken place.—August 14, 1848.

22. The two houses shall assemble in the hall of the House of Representatives at the hour of 1 o'clock p. m., on the second Wednesday in February next succeeding the meeting of the electors of President and Vice-President of the United States, and the President of the Senate shall be their presiding officer; one teller shall be appointed on the part of the Senate, and two on the part of the House of Representatives, to whom shall be handed, as they are opened by the President of the Senate, the certificates of the electoral votes; and said tellers having read the same in the presence and hearing of the two houses thus assembled bled, shall make a list of the votes as they shall appear from the said certificates; and the votes having been counted, the result of the same shall be delivered to the President of the Senate, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote and the names of the persons, if any, elected, which announcement shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons elected President and Vice-President of the United States, and, together with a list of the votes, be entered on the Journals of the two houses.

If, upon the reading of any such certificate by the tellers, any question shall arise in regard to counting the votes therein certified, the same having been stated by the presiding officer, the Senate shall thereupon withdraw, and said question shall be submitted to that body for its decision; and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall, in like manner, submit said question to the House of Representatives for its decision. And no question shall be decided affirmatively, and no vote objected to shall be counted, except by the concurrent vote of the two houses; which being obtained, the two houses shall immediately re-assemble, and the presiding officer shall then announce the decision of the question submitted; and upon any such question there shall be no debate in either house. And any other question pertinent to the object for which the two houses are assembled may be submitted and determined in like manner.

At such joint meeting of the two houses seats shall be provided as follows: For the President of the Senate, the "Speaker's chair"; for the Speaker, a chair immediately upon his left; for the Senators, in the body of the hall upon the right of the presiding officer; for the Representatives, in the body of the hall not occupied by the Senators; for the tellers, Secretary of the Senate, and Clerk of the House of Representatives, at the Clerk's desk; for the other officers of the two houses, in front of the Clerk's desk and upon either side of the Speaker's platform.

Such joint meeting shall not be dissolved until the electoral votes are all counted and the result declared; and no recess shall be taken, unless a question shall have arisen in regard to counting any of such votes, in which case it shall be competent for either house, acting separately in the manner hereinbefore provided, to direct a recess not beyond the next day, at the hour of 1 o'clock p. m.—February 6, 1865.

[For action of the two houses with respect to the joint rules see Journal House of Representatives, first session Forty-third Congress, pp. 239, 1470, 1477, and 1478. No action thereon was taken during the present session; but as business was transacted between the two houses in the mode prescribed by the same, it is deemed proper to insert them as they existed at the close of the Forty-third Congress.]

QUESTIONS OF ORDER

DECIDED IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES IN THE
THIRD SESSION OF THE FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS, COM-MENCING DECEMBER 2, 1878, AND ENDING MARCH 3, 1879.

SAMUEL J. RANDALL, OF PENNSYLVANIA, SPEAKER; GEORGE M. ADAMS, OF KENTUCKY, CLERK.

---

JANUARY 15, 1879.—Page 187.

Mr. Bundy, at 4 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m., moved that the House adjourn; on which the yeas and nays were ordered, one-fifth of the members present voting in favor thereof.

And being put,

It was decided in the negative,	{	Yeas .....	77
		Nays .....	127

* * * * *

So the motion to adjourn was disagreed to.

During the calling of the roll on the said motion, Mr. Conger made the point of order that the House having previously ordered that a recess should be taken at 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m. until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., and the former hour having arrived, the previous order of the House must be now executed.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the motion to adjourn was the only one by which the House would have the opportunity to change its mind, except the motion to reconsider the vote by which the recess was ordered, which motion was now precluded by the motion to adjourn. If the roll-call was upon a motion relating to the pending bill, it would be the duty of the Chair to execute the order of the House at 4 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m. by declaring the House to be in recess until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.

The roll-call was then concluded as above given.

And thereupon, in accordance with the previous order, the House took a recess until 7 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m.

JANUARY 21, 1879.—Pages 241, 242.

The House then proceeded, under the previous order of the House, to the consideration of the following resolutions as modified by Mr. Potter, viz:

Whereas certain alleged telegrams in cipher have been published, indicating that attempts were made after the Presidential election of 1876 to influence by money or other fraudulent methods the vote of electors or the action of canvassing boards in the States of Florida, South Carolina, and Oregon: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee upon the Investigation of the Electoral Frauds, &c., be directed to inquire into the same (and into any other matter connected with the said election which in their judgment may be proper), and that they have power to send for persons and papers and to sit during the sessions of the House, with leave to report at any time. And that there be paid by the Clerk of the House, to the Sergeant-at-Arms, out of the contingent fund of the House, the sum of $10,000, for the purposes of the committee, to be expended under the direction of the chairman of the committee or of any subcommittee; and that the Sergeant-at-Arms make report to the House of the manner in which the same has been expended, which report, when examined and approved by the Committee of Accounts, shall be deemed a satisfactory accountability on his part of the same; and that any unexpended balance remaining in his hands be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the House;

When,

Mr. Conger made the point of order that, as the said resolution made an appropriation of money, it must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the said resolution having been made a special order waived the rule requiring a bill or resolution to receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House, and also on the further ground that the resolution did not make an appropriation of money, but directed its payment out of money already, or to be hereafter, appropriated.

SAME DAY.—Page 244.

Mr. Martin also, from the Committee on War Claims, reported a bill (H. R. 6130) for the relief of Elizabeth B. Higgins, Joel Higgins, and Brand Higgins, of Phillips County, Arkansas; which bill was read twice.

Mr. Conger made the point of order that the bill must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House, on the ground that it made an appropriation of money.

The Speaker overruled the point of order on the ground that the bill referred the claim to the Court of Claims, which might or might not give judgment in behalf of these claimants, and that in the event of judgment being in their favor, the money to pay the same was appropriated in one of the general appropriation bills, in accordance with section 1089 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

JANUARY 24, 1879.—Pages 274, 275.

Mr. Culberson, from the Committee on the Judiciary, reported without amendment the bill of the Senate (S. 1038) for the relief of Jesse Turner and others, sureties upon the official bond of George W. Clarke, formerly Indian agent.

Mr. Whitthorne made the point of order that the bill must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House, on the ground that the bill made an appropriation of money.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Springer) overruled the point of order, on the ground that a bill releasing sureties upon an official bond of an officer of the government was not one making an appropriation of money, and therefore not subject to the point of order under Rule 110.

The House having proceeded to its consideration, the said bill was read the third time and passed.

FEBRUARY 7, 1879.—Page 388.

(The House having under consideration H. R. 5429),

Mr. Fort submitted an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill and amendments pending thereto.

Mr. Muldrow made the point of order that the said amendment was not in order under Rule 48, the same being identical with a bill pending before the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The Speaker sustained the point of order, and the said amendment was not received.

FEBRUARY 21, 1879.—Page 484.

Mr. Goode, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 5662) authorizing the President to appoint Dr. William Martin a surgeon in the Regular Navy of the United States, reported the same with an amendment in the nature of a substitute therefor.

Mr. Sinnickson made the point of order that the bill created a new office, and must receive its first consideration in a Committee of the Whole House.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the bill only authorized and requested the President to promote an officer from a lower to a higher grade of rank, and made no appropriation.

MARCH 3, 1879.—Page 621.

The regular order being demanded, the Speaker stated the same to be the report of the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department, proposing articles of impeachment against George F. Seward, late consul-general at Shanghai, China, and now minister plenipotentiary to China, pending when the House took its first recess on Saturday, the 1st instant, the pending question being the question of consideration raised by Mr. Garfield, on which the yeas and nays were then ordered;

When

Mr. Price proposed to submit the following resolution as a question of privilege, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee of Elections be discharged from the further consideration of the contested-election case of Nutting against Reilly, and that the same be now taken up for action in the House.

The Speaker ruled the said resolution out of order at this time, for the reason that a question of high privilege was already pending, involving the constitutional power of the House with reference to impeachment, on which question the yeas and nays had been ordered, thus precluding the presentation of another question of privilege until the pending question had been disposed of.

So the said resolution presented by Mr. Price was not received.

Mr. Conger made the point of order that, the House having referred the subject-matter of the investigation of charges against Mr. Seward to the Committee on the Judiciary, it was not in order for the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department to take further action in the said case.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, on the ground that the subject referred to the Committee on the Judiciary was the answer of the said Seward in response to the order of the House, requiring him to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of the House, and also on the further ground that the question of impeachment was one of constitutional privilege, which could be raised or presented at any time by any member of the House.

MARCH 3, 1879.—Page 642.

The House thereupon resumed the consideration of the report from the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department;

When

Mr. Butler, as a question of privilege, proposed to submit a report from the Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the answer of George F. Seward in response to the order of the House, requiring him to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of the House, and all evidence and papers pertaining thereto, with instructions to report as early as practicable what action in their judgment should be taken by the House in relation to the said matter.

The Speaker held the said report from the Committee on the Judiciary not to be in order at this time, for the reason that a question of high constitutional privilege was pending, which the House, by a yea and nay vote, had determined to consider, and on which report and accompanying resolutions the main question had been ordered.

Mr. Banks appealed from the decision of the Speaker.

And the question being,

Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

Pending which,

Mr. Springer moved that the said appeal do lie on the table;

And the question being put,

It was decided in the affirmative,	{	Yeas .....	125
		Nays .....	107
		Not voting .....	58

So the appeal from the decision of the Chair was laid on the table.
